Makes Start Sunday
Possible

ON NORTHERN ROUTE

Determined Man Attempts
To Board Giant Ship
For Passage

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin director in charge of the dirigible, ZR-3, upon receipt of weather reports which indicated that the north Atlantic was clearing announced that the start of the flight from Friedrichshafen to Kakehurst, N. J. would be made tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock and that the northern route as originally planned would be followed.

According to present intentions the giant airship will cross the occupied area, northern Belgium, Holland, the English channel, Lands End, England, and then out to sea, shaping her course according to weather reports from land stations and ocean vessels. In announcing the time for the start and probably route, which would be followed, Dr. Eckener declared:

"The weather man promises a cool morning and we think we have the hoodoo baffled at last. If all goes well, we will be over New York city some time Wednesday."

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—The flight of the Zeppelin ZR-3 from Friedrichshafen, to Lakehurst, New Jersey, the start which had been announced for this morning was suddenly postponed at the last minute until 6 o'clock tomorrow.

While no formal statement was forthcoming from the manager of the Zeppelin work where the great dirigible was built for the United States navy it was said that Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the works and commander of the ship had discovered that the ZR-3 was loaded with more than it could comfortably carry.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 11.—The police this afternoon detained an unidentified man dressed in hunting clothes and carrying a rifle, who was found loitering around the ZR-3 hangar. He had announced his determination to go to the United States aboard the dirigible or, failing in this, to shoot Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin company in charge of the airship. The police declined to reveal the man's name, but they said he was a German.

OKLAHOMA TAKES IN CORNHUSKERS

Sooners Upset Dope and Win
From Powerful Team
From Nebraska

(By the Associated Press)
NORMAN, Oct. 11.—For the first time since the World war the Nebraska Cornhuskers lost to a Missouri valley conference eleven today taking a 14-7 defeat at the hands of the Oklahoma Sooners.

Scoring their first touchdown within one minute after the game opened, the Sooners held the lead throughout. They outplayed the conference champions in every department except punting and in every period, except the third. In this period Nebraska made its only score. With the wind to their backs the Nebraska Sooners opened with a determined drive down the field culminating on a pass. Bloodgood to Collins, the latter racing across the line, Bloodgood kicked goal. After this the Huskers were impotent against the Sooner defense.

Oklahoma's first score came when Woodall smothered an attempted punt by Bloodgood picked up the ball and darted across the line. The second touchdown came in the second period when Lamb climaxed a brilliant Sooner march down the field by diving over tackle for a yard and goal. Bristol's toe added the extra point in each instance.

It was the first conference game for both teams. The Huskers entered as one sided favorites following their feat of holding the powerful Illinois eleven to 9-6 scores last Saturday and the defeat of the Sooners by Central Teachers College 2-0 the same day.

Landis Pays High Tribute to Walter Johnson as Pitcher

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Tribute was paid to Walter Johnson today by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the czar of organized baseball, during a flying visit to the supreme court this morning enroute to the railroad station.

"Walter Johnson never had a faster ball 20 years ago," Judge Landis said. "He had perfect control and could put it over the plate within a fraction of an inch of where he wanted it to go. I want to go on record as saying that yesterday's struggle was a perfect game not only from the view of spectators in the stand, but also from an artistic point of view. I never had seen anything like it before and probably never will again. I regard it as the greatest game ever played."

COTTON GINNING IN COUNTY JUMPS

Approximately 12,000 Bales
Now Ginned in County,
Reports Show

With the prolonged period of fair weather cotton picking, probably passed the half-way mark last week. The total amount ginned in Ponotoc is close to 12,000 bales, counting round bales as halves, and with the seed cotton the gins have in storage the figures are a trifle over the above.

Figures collected by The News Saturday showed 11,755 bales ginned and ginner of Ada estimated that they paid at least 200 bales in storage and that other gins in the county held as much or more.

The figures given below were obtained by phone from the various places indicated with the exception of Pithugh. All except Maxwell and Beebe were reached in the morning and the figures from the Ada gins were obtained about 3 p. m. The figures for Pithugh were at the close of Thursday.

The figures are as follows: Allen 1705; Vanoss 551; Stonewall 2,080; Francis 200; Frisco 647; Ada 4,196; Pithugh 195; B-bee 71; Maxwell 373; Roff 1601.

The federal census bureau's report places the number ginned prior to October 1 at 4,115 bales, hence about half of the season's output has been turned out in the past two weeks.

For the entire season of last year the total for the county was 8,599 bales of which 3,157 was ginned prior to October 1, and for 1922 crop was between 11,000 and 12,000 bales.

Up to 3:30 Saturday afternoon the county weather had handled 4,104 bales, 353 bales of association cotton had been received and 300 round bales ginned in Ada, making the total for Ada 4,613 bales, or a trifle more than one-third of the county's total.

Saturday was a heavy day for the gins of Ada, receipts being unusually large.

The local market was about the same as Friday, prices ranging from 23.50 downward, the price sagging somewhat in the afternoon.

(By the Associated Press)
MUSKOGEE, Oct. 11.—A warning to county registrars throughout eastern Oklahoma to "permit all qualified voters to register and vote in the November election" was issued today by Frank Lee, United States district attorney.

"If registration officers can be permitted to arbitrarily say who can vote," he declared in a letter to registrars, "all elections would be farces, for the whole matter would be in their hands. It should be the policy to encourage citizens to vote rather than to prevent them from exercising this most sacred right of citizenship."

Five Thousand Teachers Wait For Salaries

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.—More than 5,000 teachers in Oklahoma public schools are waiting to receive salaries due them for work last year while litigation over the constitutionality of a $650,000 weak school district fund is being determined.

According to N. A. Nash, state superintendent of schools, 5,303 teachers in 1,039 school districts are due money for services performed last year. In several instances banks advanced money to the school trustees to pay teachers' salaries but the majority of the teachers completed their year's work without receiving any salary.

The appropriation voted by the legislature last March was intended to give aid to school districts unable to finance the remainder of the school term. On the advice of Nash most of the teachers in the weak districts remained at work, hoping to receive their salaries early in the summer.

A suit filed in the district court at Muskogee by Fred L. Miller sought to restrain state officers from disbursing the money. The petition was denied. Miller appealed to the state supreme court and again the petition was denied. A new hearing however has been granted.

SHIDLER BANK ROBBERY ATTACK IS FRUSTRATED

(By the Associated Press)
PAWUSKA, Oct. 11.—An attempt to rob the First National Bank of Shidler was frustrated today after a gun battle in which two of the three alleged bandits were wounded and the third captured.

The bandits who had entered the bank soon after it opened this morning and overpowered the three occupants, were engaged in looting the institution when they were observed by a passerby who gave the alarm and a citizens' posse opened fire. None but the marauders was injured.

The names of the captured were not given in the first report to Pawhuska. It was said that one of the men was shot in the head and another in the body. The third surrendered.

COOLIDGE TELLS WORKERS OF AIM OF GOVERNMENT

Working Cooperation Between
Business and Public
Stressed

TO HEINZ EMPLOYEES

Claims Government Must be
Servant of Public
Welfare

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Working cooperation between business and the public "in accord with dictates of common sense" was held up tonight by President Coolidge in an address by radio to the employees of the H. J. Heinz Company gathered at banquets in various cities to celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the business.

The supremacy of the government has been the main motive, dominating the economic and political development of recent years, he said, adding that it has brought public interest into collision with modern industry.

But the government, Mr. Coolidge declared, prefers to let business go its own way, so long as that is the right way; so long as it is the way for honest and genuine service to real public interest.

The government, he continued, must be the servant of the public welfare and the creation of an informed public opinion.

"It cannot be dominated by any privilege," the President warned, "it cannot be subservient to any private advantage. It must represent the public. There are encouraging signs of readiness to go further in the same way. The government will surely be prepared to give all encouragement to such a program, for by these methods only shall we bring about a proper balance and secure an adjustment between individual interest and harmony with the highest consideration of the national welfare."

"The people may be assured that they will be protected in the ownership of their property," Mr. Coolidge insisted, "as the control of such property will maintain their supremacy over their government."

"They know," he added, "when the government begins to own property, it begins to own people. They want all these powers in their own hands."

"It is the firm policy of the American people," the President declared, "to insist that business firms and methods shall be subordinated to the public interest."

In this regard, he said, public authority represented by the attitude of the people is one of moderation in dealing with these difficult and complex problems.

Two of the persons were being held in jail at Villa Ahumada, Chihuahua. They were of foot and armed when they were arrested on the railroad right-of-way, according to reports received in Juarez. They had no money, it was said. One was said to be an American.

The other three suspects were arrested on the United States side of the Rio Grande about five miles south of El Paso.

NOT RUBICON-BUT SOUTH CANADIAN CROSSED

CITY LEADERS REJOICE WITH DEDICATION OF BRIDGE OVER CANADIAN; FEAST WELL TAKEN

Marking a new era in the commercial life of this section of the state, the formal opening of the McKewn bridge, recently completed twelve miles north of Ada and spanning the South Canadian river, was celebrated Friday.

The business men of Ada, aided by a small contribution from Konawa, had provided three thousand pounds of barbecue, composed of well fed beefs and a few goats. There was enough to feed the 2500 hundred who were present and a generous supply left for many of those to take home.

The celebration was a get-together affair, and a note of harmony and mutual helpfulness was evident. All of the speakers stressed the importance of the bridge, linking together communities hitherto separated by the almost impassable river and opening up new social and commercial relations. Greater progress for both sides for agricultural districts and for towns and cities was predicted.

There was not a note of difference or divided sentiment. The thousands who attended made new friends, swapped experiences and applauded the sentiments of the speakers.

One of the main features of the day was the playing of the two Ada bands, the High School band, under the direction of Mr. Cudd, and the College band, under the direction of Capt. Montin. The Holdenville band, on account of school work and a football game in Holdenville, was unable to appear.

The band played often, and received the closest of attention and much applause. Their uniforms added to the occasion.

Estimates of many present were that more people south of the river attended than did those north, though this was difficult to determine. Other estimates were that the attendance from the two sides of the river was about the same.

Had it not been for the busy time both on the farm and in the towns, many believed that ten thousand people would have attended the opening. As it was, the ends sought were fully attained, all who were seen about the matter agreed, and that was to let the world know that the bridge now spans the river and that the most direct route north and south through this section of the state is through Ada and Konawa.

The speaking started about 11 o'clock. Rev. R. T. Blackburn, pastor of the First Methodist church of Ada, acting as master of ceremonies. In his case of manner, pleasant way of presenting matters and humorous sayings, he led the proceedings step by step through the day.

The address of welcome on behalf of the city of Ada was delivered by Roy L. Givens, president of the Ada Chamber of Commerce. He was followed by M. P. Mathis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Konawa, who welcomed the crowds on behalf of Konawa. Both of these speakers stressed the importance of the bridge, linking the two cities and these with others, in a closer commercial union.

These were followed by Dr. A. Linchard, who spoke of the importance of better means of transportation. Speaking as the president of the teachers college, which serves this district and to which the bridge is expected to prove of advantage, Dr. Linchard stressed the importance of good roads and better means of transportation in this district in particular.

At slightly after noon, Dr. Blackburn announced that the barbecue was ready to serve. Great tables had been constructed behind which the servers, Ada business men, were lined up ready to hand out the barbecue, buns and coffee. Back of these tables over hot coals lay the beef, cooked to a beautiful brown by Oklahoma's king of barbecueists, Bill Coffman, and his assistants.

The ladies going one way and the men another, food was handed out in generous fashion. In less than an hour the great crowd had been fed and still there lay over the hot coals great pieces of brown beef. Urged to eat and eat more, the celebrators partook lavishly of the meat, which had been cooking for thirty-six hours.

The dinner over, the crowds again assembled around the speakers platform to listen to more music and more speaking.

Afternoon Speakers.

Rev. S. H. Anglemire, pastor of the First Christian church of Holdenville, addressed the audience as a representative of the Chamber of Commerce of Holdenville. He was followed by Dick Richardson, county commissioner of Pontotoc County. Both of these speakers were glad to take part in the celebration of the opening of the bridge will prove a connecting link between their cities and the people south of the river, and both foretold great mutual advantages to be derived.

Moving over to the north end of the bridge, the crowd witnessed the dedication ceremony. George Key, the builder, told of the assistance the business men of Ada had been to him. Without the cooperation of the people not only in Ada but on both sides of the river, he said the completion of the project would have been impossible. But the men who were responsible for the accomplished fact, he said, was Tom McKewn.

At the close of Mr. Key's remarks, Miss Elizabeth Cain, handsomely dressed and with dignity and ease, compared the sturdy structure with the sturdy life and character of Tom McKewn and, breaking a bottle of crude oil from the Bowle well, christened it the "McKewn Bridge."

Mr. McKewn, apparently touched by the tribute to his endeavors, delivered a short speech, telling what is needed in the way of commercial highway arteries of trade. With a benediction by Rev. E. O. Whitwell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Ada, the ceremony came to a close, and the crowds began to scatter to their homes.

Loeb-Leopold Case Inspiration for High School Play

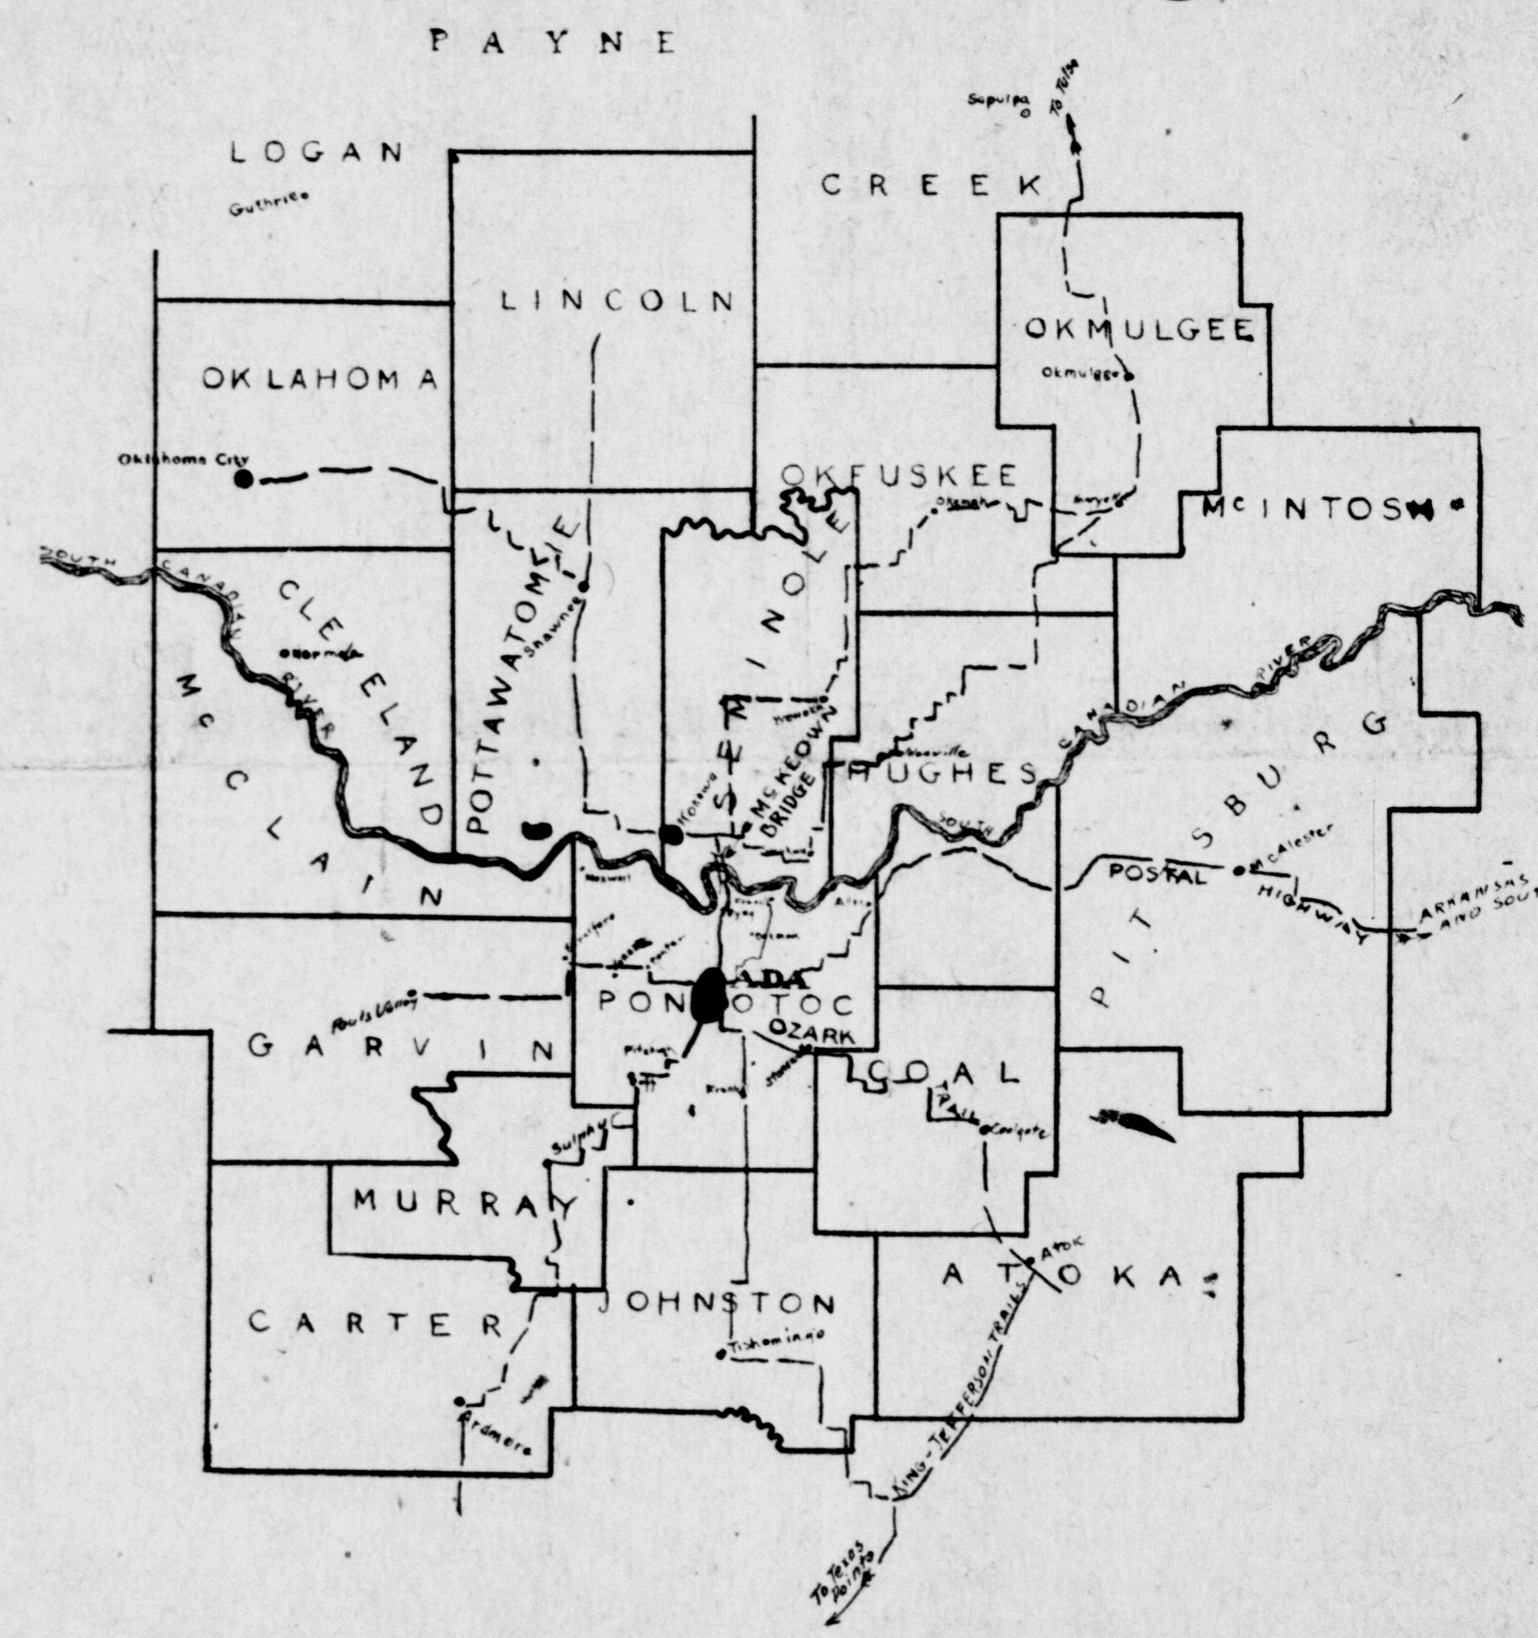

"College Thrills," is the title of drama which will be produced by the public speaking students of Ada High school under the coaching of Mr. German.

This play will entertain the audience for two hours with some tragical and some comical scenes, and it contains something worth while in thought. There are eleven main characters for the plot, which was suggested to the author by the recent Leopold-Leopold kidnapping case in Chicago; and there are several minor characters, making twenty-six in the entire cast.

This drama will be presented to the public October 24, with the best talent in Ada high school, under careful training; and it is hoped that it will be liberally supported by the public, as it is a means of not only giving something good but also of raising funds for support of the district and state interscholastic debate.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.—A call of the condition of all state banks at the close of business on Saturday was issued today by O. B. Motherhead, state banking commissioner. The state call followed the national call.

Territory McKewn Bridge Serves

Sidelights On Barbecue

Bill Coffman and some of them who helped him worked for two or three days for the success of the program. They went out as early as Wednesday and some of them stayed out the entire time, watching the meat by day and by night, in order that the people could have delicious eating for the occasion. Although Bill said he could not recall just at that time all who helped him, here are some of them: Henry Stucky, Jack Kitchell, Jim Couch, Paul Alderson, Allen Stanfield, Monroe Corton, Byron Sledge Joe Cole and Doc Sandbach. There were probably others. If so both Bill and the writer apologize for omitting the names.

Among the interested men at the celebration were Pontotoc County's three commissioners. These men wanted a free bridge across the river, but saw no way of getting one soon. So they lent their efforts to getting the toll bridge across. Clay Stephens has already put much work on the road, and has it in better shape than most people thought he could get it in in the length of time. The entire road is in his district. He expects to get it in even better condition within a short time. There is not a man in the county better pleased to see an outlet to the north than Messrs. Stephens, Lesman and Pace.

W. F. Kerr, one of Oklahoma's most talented newspaper men, was down for the celebration. "Billie," as he is generally known to his friends, has held down almost every desk on the Oklahoma, has been with the Associated Press and had the nerve one time to tackle the job of financing and operating a country weekly. He is now a free lance writer and correspondent for several trade papers. He expects to give the bridge considerable publicity and this entire section of the state. Billie is a good friend of George Key's.

J. P. Bailey, who lives near the Tyrola schoolhouse, for a long time has dreamed of a great ocean-to-gulf highway by his country home. And now his ambition is about to be realized. The completion of the bridge puts him on the highway, and there was not a happier person at the bridge Friday than Mr. Bailey.

R. W. Simpson had a few extra smiles on Friday also. Mr. Simpson has talked good roads so long that everyone knows he is an enthusiast. But he not only talks, he does. When eventually hard surfaced roads span this county from border to border, there should be a monument placed by the side of one in a very conspicuous place, carrying the name of Pontotoc's first disciple of good roads, R. W. Simpson.

Otto Strickland, democratic nominee for representative in the next legislature, was shaking hands with friends and rejoicing at another of man's triumphs over nature. Otto is for good roads and better roads and more bridges. He will be found fighting for better things for this county when he gets to the legislature. If there comes a time when he can help make this a free bridge, he will be found ready and willing to help.

Governor Trapp was sorely missed, but the speakers who appeared on the program were entirely satisfactory to the crowd. They entertained and informed. Rev. Blackburn established such a reputation as a master of ceremonies, that he is likely to be called upon often in the future.

George Key paid a glowing tribute to Col. W. E. Harvey, as a booster for the bridge. He also spoke highly of the work the bankers of Ada did as well as other boosters.

The best barbecue ever cooked! That is the way some spoke of the meat served at the noon hour.

Orel Busby was smiling around over the hills. You know Orel used to live at Konawa, and in fact was mayor of the city. As we recall now, he was the youngest mayor in the world at the time he headed the city government there. Anyway he simply is pleased when anything happens to draw the towns closer together. He loves the people who bestowed upon him his first political honor.

Senator Tom Anglin could not be present, but Holdenville sent an able speaker in Bro. Anglemire. Although he is young, he has the qualities of leadership. Holdenville sent a swarm of boosters, and they wore their badges too.

Shawnee had a delegation of boosters on the job. So did some of the other towns north of the river.

Miss Elizabeth Cain, who christened the bridge, was selected by the entire student body of the East Central State Teachers College. This within itself was a tribute to her. To say she acquitted herself gloriously does not quite make it strong enough.

NEED FOR ROADS SEEN WITH OPENING OF NEW BRIDGE NOW LINKING TRADE TERRITORIES

With the official dedication of the McKewn bridge Friday, the opening of an abundant trade territory for Ada and a closer feeling of kinship to the cities to the north, the distant rumbling of a boomerang for better roads in Pontotoc county could be heard above the favorable sentiment cast through the dedication of the new bridge.

Between gulps of barbecue, amidst applause for speakers and in line with practically every conversation could be heard the crying need for better road facilities to meet the heavy stream of traffic bound to result from the new artery of travel opened through the completion of the bridge.

Simultaneous with the launching of plans for the bridge across the South Canadian, talk for good roads for the county was started and from all indications it is reaching a peak that will demand action in some respect.

During the dry weather the road to the bridge will be sufficiently durable to handle the traffic barring the dust to be breathed from the sandy roads but in bad weather heavy traffic is certain to impair road conditions and make travel inconvenient.

The prospect of a road from Ada to the bridge is not the only project in the minds of road enthusiasts of Ada but on the other hand boosters are anxious to link Ada with the hard surfaced highways to the south that lead into Arkansas and Texas so that the flow of traffic through Ada to Oklahoma City and points north may be increased.

Business Men Pleased

Business men and public spirited leaders of Ada are all of the opinion that the opening of the new bridge is a benefit of enormous consequence to Ada; that it will open a trade territory to the north; but many of the leaders express themselves as being favorable to better roads in Pontotoc county in order to offer something more than a bridge to the motoring public.

JOE COLE—The new bridge is one of the greatest things that has ever happened to this county. It opens up a new trade territory for Ada and as far as tourists are concerned it will make it possible for them to come through Ada. The next thing we need is a good road from the bridge south to the county line to make it complete and if Ada gets the full benefit of the bridge we must have the road.

M. C. WILSON—The bridge is a forward step the city of Ada has taken that will not only open up a new trade territory but will benefit passers-by and through and the people of Ada are to be congratulated on the completion of this bridge.

MAYOR JONES—I hardly know how to value the worth of the bridge. Besides putting Ada on the highway it opens up a road from the north to Texas and there is no way of estimating the value.

LANGFORD SHAW—The new bridge is of inestimable worth and is something Ada should have had ten years ago.

HARRY SCHEINBERG—The new bridge is a beginning of a series of road improvements to Pontotoc county and the sooner we appreciate good roads the sooner we will prosper.

L. A. ELLISON—I regard the new bridge very valuable considering the trade territory it will open up for Ada and the connection of old fields on both sides. It will lead to better roads which will result in a gradual building up of the entire community not only through added trade territory but by reason of the great number of tourists who hope and expect to bring through Ada and Pontotoc county.

W. E. HARVEY—The new bridge is equal to anything the town has ever done. I think of nothing that could help as much as the bridge.

TRAINING SCHOOL PROVES SUCCESS

School Graduates 115 After Week of Sunday School Instruction

Sunday schools and church work for the Methodist church will be adequately taken care of by the 115 students successfully passing the examinations of the Methodist Training School which closed Friday evening.

Rev. R. T. Blackburn, pastor of the First Methodist church, and in charge of the school, considers the school one of the most important held in this district and the results far beyond his expectations.

Approximately 180 students enrolled at the beginning of the school last Sunday at 3 o'clock and out of that number 115 were present at all classes and passed the requirements demanded by the school.

The school was handicapped to some extent by the shortage of books caused by the enlarged classes. A number of students were forced to be absent for several classes, thereby preventing them from receiving credit for their work.

One feature of the school was the recognition of an hour's work at the College for students passing the requirements of the school. Approximately 100 students of the College enrolled in the classes.

A feature of the training school was the lectures of Dr. John A. Rice, D. D. L. L. D., whose daily lectures through Thursday furnished inspiration to the students attending the school.

Special workers in each department of the school capably handled the throng of students taking the work. Mrs. Ferguson of Oklahoma City handled the primary department; Mrs. Smith of Little Rock, the junior department; Mrs. Hodnett, the intermediate senior department; E. A. Wilson of Oklahoma City, administration and organization; Wallace M. Cuthfield of Durant, Church history.

The school required for elective and four specialization courses in each department.

The purpose of the training school is to train teachers for the Sunday school on the same scale of proficiency used in training teachers in the public schools. The move is primarily a Methodist venture, in which competent instructors are brought into a vicinity to instruct teachers for Sunday school work in the most effective means. Every phase of Sunday school work is given thorough attention and the Bible instruction for Sunday school work is thoroughly reviewed.

Police Department Busy

The city police department enjoyed another busy week, which was culminated with four pleas of guilty in police court Saturday morning and payment of fines in each instance. Two drunks and two peace disturbers faced the bar of justice Saturday morning.

Oil News

The past week has witnessed no material changes in the oil field of the county and territory. The most interesting well at this time is probably the Bryan test on the Palmer farm in section 18-4-6, about three miles northwest of Ada.

The 8-inch casing has been set at approximately 1300 feet and everything is in readiness for drilling deeper within two or three days. The casing is set in a hard limestone, and beneath this it is expected will be found a sand carrying oil, gas or water. On account of the closeness to the gas field and the deep test made on the west by the Magnolia several years ago, this test is creating no little interest. Ed Gillette and Robert Galbraith, Jr., are drilling the hole.

Many of the operators have fishing jobs. The American Oil and Refining company has a fishing job on the Breco farm in section 3-4-6, north of Ada. The Texas Pacific Company in section 31-4-6, west of Ada is having trouble. Jack Lloyd pulled his casing apart in section 6-3-7.

The Hughes well has been cleaned out in section 28-4-7, but an actual test has not yet been made. P. S. Smith, long experienced in this county, believes the well is of commercial value. The shot apparently was successful.

TULSA, Dec. 5.—Seminole county was in the crude petroleum lime-light during November, when more than one-half of the Oklahoma flush production came from the Seminole wells, says the current issue of the Oil Weekly.

Out of 69 completions in Seminole during last month, 62 were producers. There were four gas wells and three "dusters."

During November one or more wells were completed in 29 Oklahoma counties with producers in only 15 of the counties. Only four counties failed to report a dry hole. The entire state showed 254 completions, of which 168 were producers, 17 gas wells and 69 "dusters."

The summary for the month and the columns of figures indicate in order field or county, completions, producers, gas wells, initial production:

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

The Tupelo boys and girls were accompanied by Prof. and Mrs. Os. at H. Darter and eight cars of others. No finer spirit of sportsmanship was ever seen on the local court.

LIBELING THE MONKEY.

Monkeys are said to have had a great deal to do with stopping the recent Chinese war. Monkeying had a great deal to do with starting the recent World war.—McAlester Guardian.

Now isn't that statement something of a libel on the monkey tribe? We don't believe any monkey would have had so little brains as to deliberately start a war. Furthermore the conduct of European diplomats during the days preceding the opening of the war was too wooden headed to be dignified by the term monkeying.

If a young man at the beginning of his career could see all the troubles that are to come to him during his lifetime, they would make a mountain of mighty dimensions. Furthermore, if he could see the troubles that are to surround him but which never really happen, they would make two or three mountains. Such a spectacle would be enough to take all the nerve out of the young fellow and cause him to give up the fight at the outset. However, by disposing of his difficulties a few at a time the man finally levels the mountain completely and the exertion has greatly strengthened him. The troubles he escapes are only phantoms, terrifying at times, and appearing very real when they confront one.

Speaking of winning in the face of obstacles, how about the Wellston, Oklahoma, boy who won first honors at the International Livestock show in Chicago as the best all around club member of 700,000 in the United States? It is said that the boy's parents are unable to read and write, they live in a three room shack and have 14 children. Of course they have had a hard rub to get by, but this boy found time to take up club work and profit by it. Doubtless he did not have the equipment with which to work that many other boys and girls had, but he made good in spite of all handicaps.

France is going to deal with communists with a stern hand, the prime minister declares. The world has seen enough of the working of the communistic system in Russia to cause every civilized nation to hate it and to look upon a communist as it would a rattlesnake. The preaching of communism is all a doctrine of destruction and a reign of terror beside which the French Revolution was a May Day picnic. Human nature rebels against communism and it is only by force that the system can secure a foothold and maintain itself. The world has had enough of bayonet rule.

The race between community builders and community knockers is a keen one. The builders are much in the majority but one knocker can tear down faster than a dozen boosters can build up and one crook can do more damage than 100 of the most progressive hustlers can repair. The only thing that saves the situation is that knockers and crooks make up a very small majority of the citizenship.

A lot of Tulsa men learned a valuable lesson about mail order business sometime ago. A smooth stranger took orders for suits, promising $75 values for $23.50. Of course he caught a lot of suckers, each of whom made a $10 deposit. The smooth stranger then left town taking the deposits with him. Needless to say the suits have not arrived.

The booster spirit has struck Maine. A move is on foot for the legislature to appropriate $25,000 and various cities supplement this to provide a fund with which to advertise the state. We thought New England had already reached its zenith, but this indicates that some opportunities still remain there for enterprising people.

The Democrats in congress have signified their intention of helping to shape and pass needed legislation at this session and will not attempt obstructive tactics. Rather different from the Republican maneuvers to hinder everything the Democrats attempted to do simply because it was proposed by the Democrats.

The El Reno American completed the thirtieth year of its existence last week. Thirty years is a long time in Oklahoma history and in the case of the American it has emerged from many ups and downs as one of the state's best weekly papers on a firm footing and with a prosperous outlook for the future.

Dr. Carver, a negro chemist at Tuskegee Institute, has developed 165 different products from the peanut, but the Columbia Record doubts if he can make anything out of a peanut politician.

Congress keeps on talking about farm relief legislation but when pinned down to brassbacks few, if any, of the members have a definite idea of how to go about it.

The Little Rock Gazette remarks that the only thing to be said about common sense is that it is decidedly uncommon.

COMMISSIONER HERE REAPS IN HARVEST

Deluge of Booze Cases Follows Opening of Federal Office in Ada

A new factor has entered into the fight to stem the traffic and manufacture of corn whiskey in Pontotoc county.

In what is believed to be a record for the state, Howard West, recently appointed U. S. Commissioner here, has filed 25 cases in federal court here since Thanksgiving.

All but two of the cases constitute alleged violations of the national prohibition act or deal with violation of booze laws.

The two cases not dealing with alleged liquor violations are two filed here Tuesday, charged with looting the United States mails.

When Commissioner West took over the duties of his office here, he suffered such a deluge of business that it required long hours into the night to properly file and list charges on his docket and he declares that the activities of officers have caused a constant influx of cases since the opening of the office here.

Prior to the appointment of Commissioner West and the opening of his office here, officers making arrests in Pontotoc county were forced to transport prisoners to Coalgate to be arraigned before a commissioner. The establishment of the office here will cut down the expense of travel for the officers and prisoners and speed up service on warrants for offenders in this county.

The city and county authorities are responsible directly or indirectly for a majority of the arrests and for cases filed before the commissioner. City officers have participated in all but two raids, which turned cases into commissioner's office.

The county deputies have also participated in most of the arrests in the cases on Commissioner West's docket.

While city or county officers cannot file directly complaints in the commissioner's court, R. O. Sumpter, U. S. marshal, fills in the gap and provides speedy service on arrests made by city or county officers or assists in arrests when city or county officers require his services.

MAN CELEBRATES EIGHTY-FOURTH BIRTHDAY

J. F. M. Harris celebrated his 84th birthday Monday. He was born in Alabama near Birmingham, Dec. 8, 1840. He received most of his education on a dirt floor. He is one of nine children, and is seven years older than the first postage stamp.

He served in the Civil war. He came to Texas in 1886 and then to Ada in 1901, and has been here since then.

He is hale hearty and jolly, lives at 200 East Thirteenth where he has resided since 1903. He still walks to town in any kind of weather.

He is the father of two children, Mrs. C. D. Price and G. C. Harris, both of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris entertained Monday with a dinner, served to C. A. Green and wife, Judge Kennamer, Judge Bolen, Mrs. J. F. Jackson and daughter, Estelle, H. A. Green and family, Henry Archer of Holdenville, P. Archer of Madill, Mrs. Leo Breco of Stonehill, Jack Price and wife, G. C. Harris and family, and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Price.

He was presented with a birthday cake with 84 candles, aside from the many presents given by those who enjoyed the celebration.

The Woman's Tonic

"It seems like it did me good from the very first. After I had taken half a bottle I noticed an improvement. I continued its use and I got better and better. The pains in my legs and sides disappeared and I began to gain in weight until now I weigh 155 pounds and feel better than I ever did in my life. I am perfectly well and strong. I have given it to my girls, too."

Black and Aluminum Selected As Colors For 1925 Auto Tags

OKLAHOMA CITY. — The automobile license tag for 1925 will be black and aluminum instead of green and white as formerly, according to announcements by the highway department. The black background will give greater visibility to the aluminum letters, it was said and aid in "catching" the car numbers in case of trouble of any kind.

The commission, meanwhile, was preparing its list of deputy auto tax collectors for every county in the state to collect auto taxes for the coming year.

The appointment of a deputy collector for each county marks a radical change in the method of issuing auto license tags, which according to E. Bee Guthrey, secretary of the state highway commission will mean a saving of 20,000 annually to the state.

Under the new plan, auto owners will apply to the deputy in the county in which they reside for their license this year. The deputy will be bonded for $10,000 and the license fee together with a 50-cent notary public fee for an affidavit of ownership will be paid him.

Delivery of tags by the deputy will save the five cents postage to the state highway commission or a total saving of more than $20,000, Guthrey stated today.

Delinquent taxes to the extent of $150,000 are expected to be added to the new years' collections, Guthrey said, which will swell the 1925 collections approximately $600,000 more than last year. The expected increase will be effected through close scrutiny of auto owners by the deputy collectors to see that license tags are displayed on all autos in the state.

The following men have been appointed collectors in their congressional districts to aid in selecting county deputies.

E. W. McEwen, Enid; Ben Lohman, Geary; George Noble, former highway commissioner; Sydney Suggs, former highway commissioner, and Henry Hand.

The Mystery Road

By
E. Phillips Oppenheim

Gerald found himself alone in an apartment not unlike large but exceedingly lofty. It was simply but magnificently furnished, but only a single rug lay upon the floor. The windows looked over the sea, and the thunder of the waves against the jagged rocks seemed almost at his feet. The windows themselves were narrow—the windows of a fortress—and the depth of the window seat showed the thickness of the walls. Gerald had little time to take note of these things, however. Within a moment or two of his being left alone the door opened and Pauline entered.

"You Have Had a Long Journey, Lord Dombey," She Said.

Speech of any sort, it seemed to Gerald, must be painfully inadequate. He stood looking at her, wondering if anything in her expression would give him the clue to her mysterious behavior. She came toward him, however, as composed and unresponsive as ever. There was nothing whatever in her manner to indicate the fact that she was greeting the man who had risked his life in a mad enterprise for her sake.

"You have had a long journey, Lord Dombey," she said.

He bowed over the hand which she had extended to him.

"A long journey, indeed," he assented. "A journey down into hell and back."

"Sit down," she invited, "and I will give you the explanation I owe you."

"Thank you," he answered. "I do not feel at home in this house. Let me remain standing until after you have told me what it all means. I have done your bidding. I have come to beg for my reward."

Her eyes looked at him coldly. "I promised no reward," she reminded him.

"Not in words," he admitted. "Yet you know what I desire."

"What you desire is absurd," she declared. "That is what I wish to explain. You have discovered, perhaps, who I am."

"I learned who your brother was," she went on, "listen. I am the Grand Duchess Pauline of Russia, princess and hereditary ruler of the Caspian provinces, and nearest in kin among living women to Nicholas, who was murdered by the people. The man whom you rescued is Paul, grand duke of Volostok, hereditary ruler of seventeen provinces, and nearest in the male line to the crown of Russia. He is my cousin."

"Your cousin?" Gerald exclaimed.

"And my husband," she answered calmly.

Gerald was extraordinarily cool. The situation began slowly to shape itself in his mind.

"It has been the province of royalty," Pauline continued, "to make use of their courtiers, without explanation, in whatever way may seem good to them. I have made use of you. I did not seek your acquaintance or your friendship. I have made you to promises. I have kept you much farther away even from hope than would many of my illustrious ancestors. Yet, in these days, you will probably think that you have been ill-treated. I cannot help it. I and others of my race have been ill and mercilessly treated. Yours has been a small wrong. I made use of you and your devotion to free my cousin, to whom I was affianced. So far as my thanks can satisfy you, I tender them."

"You are very gracious," Gerald acknowledged, forgetting all his weariness and holding himself like a man.

"May I ask, were you married to the grand duke when I fetched him from his prison?"

"I was not," Pauline assured him. "I was married a month after his return to England, with the consent and the approbation of my relatives here. Paul and I have but one hope and one desire—to live until the time when the people of Russia return to their allegiance, and to re-establish the Romanoff dynasty in Russia, either through ourselves or our children. For that reason we are living here with an unseen guard provided by the English government. When you first met us we lived in seclusion, because already four times my life had been attempted. There are still men pledged to destroy us root and branch. Here they will not succeed. We are surrounded by faithful guards, and our lives are consecrated. Not until the children live and flourish will shall carry on our name will I or my husband take the slightest risk. The world may see something of us later. For the present we have only one thought."

Gerald stood among the wreck of his dreams. He seemed to be listening to the thunder of the sea, to be watching the queer-shaped shaft of sunlight which stretched across the floor. He found speech almost impossible. The silence lasted so long, however, that he was compelled to break it.

"Your highness' explanation is complete?" he asked.

"It is complete," she replied. "You will understand that your—shall I call it admiration?—was, in a sense, an offense to me. In Monte Carlo I will admit that through sheer weariness I was perhaps a little indiscreet. The situation then seemed hopeless."

"I understand," Gerald murmured.

"The grand duke, my husband, will wish to offer you some hospitality," she said, touching a bell. "Be so good as to await his coming."

Prince Paul entered the room a moment or two later, a touch of sunburn on his cheeks, erect and handsome, a very different person from the broken prisoner of a few months ago. He advanced toward Gerald with outstretched hand.

"It gives me great pleasure," he said, "to welcome you in my very bad English to our home. You see, I reached England safely. Perhaps you will give us the pleasure of your company to dinner tonight?"

Gerald shook his head.

"I have promised the owner of the car which I hired," he said, "to return it to him tonight. I must, in fact, be leaving at once."

A servant entered with a tray bearing wine and whisky. Paul served his guest himself.

"They tell me that this is the most hospitable country of the world," he observed. "Even in Russia we should not let you depart without a toast. I wish you those things for which your highness and I live."

Gerald bowed and raised his glass to his lips.

"I shall drink to you and to your country," he said, "and to the good of both."

children would be authorized under a bill introduced in the house today by Representative E. B. Howard of Oklahoma.

He set down his glass empty. Pauline smiled her goodbye, but "they" handed him over to the care of servants with the air of royalty. Gerald drove through the opened gates, heard the bars grind behind him, and, looking around for a last view, was dimly conscious of men who watched. Years afterward this strange visit, with all its trilling events, assumed its proper proportions in his mind. That night, however, he drove over the moors and around the mountains absolutely without any direct emotions. It was impossible to believe that his visit had not been the fantasy of an afternoon's slumber.

Chapter IX

After they had left Toulon the two men seemed almost to change places. Gerald, who for the last four days had been in much the same mentally comatose state as he had been since his return from Scotland, sat up and for the first time began to look about him with interest. Christopher, on the other hand, who during the whole of their journey had been continually endeavoring to amuse and entertain his companion, gradually relapsed into a rare fit of thoughtfulness. They had passed through Mieres, however, and were winding their way around the Forêt du Dom, before any direct allusion was made to the subject which in varying degrees was foremost in the minds of both of them.

"About an hour and a half beyond this, wasn't it?" Gerald asked.

Christopher nodded. It was significant that he made no comment upon the fact that Gerald had caught up with his own train of thought.

"Just about this time of the year, too," Gerald went on, ruminatingly. "I remember these orchards were just showing a little pink. And you say she's back again here, Chris. I wonder why? There wasn't any trouble at home, was there?"

"Not the slightest," Christopher assured him. "In fact, all the time you were in Russia your father seemed to rely upon her absolutely. It was a great blow to him when she made up her mind to go back."

"But what made her want to leave?" Gerald persisted.

Christopher did not hesitate for a moment. He meant to take every possible advantage of this, the first sign of any real interest in life which Gerald had shown for months.

Reading or Every Home

I have been asked by members of the clubs the traveling libraries sent out by the library commission in Oklahoma City and in correspondence with Mrs. Dale, chairman of the commission, I find that families can get the books as well as clubs or schools. The commission will help outline a course of reading giving suggestions and helps in many ways to get needed reference work if a study course is chosen. Books of fiction will be included in any collection if desired.

Next weeks issue will have directions how to get the books, and when. This is a wonderful opportunity for the home in the rural communities and I will be glad to assist anyone to get started.

It's a Woman-Sized Job—This Wife Business

After you have successfully married a man its your job to make him happy. And if you don't succeed in doing that you fall just as a man falls in his business career. A happy marriage just doesn't happen. It's made up of Well-cooked meals, mended socks, sympathy, love and understanding and a few little incidentals like those. And your job is to provide them.

There is no "vamp" in the world to compare with the comfortable woman who puts the buttons in her lord's clean shirt and keeps a corner of the living room sacred to his old easy-chair, his ash-tray and his favorite magazines. The wife who believes two hours a day is all any woman needs to spend doing her house-work will never have the kind of home that looks better to her husband than the club, the pool-room or the golf links.

But that doesn't mean that there's not another side to life and marriage.

There's the romantic side that really is the heart and soul of the institution. And if you want to keep that as it should be you have got to keep yourself the attractive woman your husband first fell in love with. You can't slump. No man remains long in love with a woman who is physically shabby. If you have let your husband see you with your hair uncombed, face shining with cold cream and in a soiled kimono, you may depend upon it you are no longer the woman of his dreams you once were—no matter what he may say to the contrary.

And if you are letting your brain get into sloppy negligee habits you are making the mistake of your life. Men admire no one so much as they do a good talker. To hold your husband's interest you must make yourself entertaining. Do you?

Do you read the daily newspapers? Your husband does, of course, and he knows what's happening in the world. If you don't, it scores against you in this marriage game.

The wife who knows who Walter Johnson is, and how many times the Prince of Wales' horse has thrown him, is a dozen times more interesting than the one whose dinner-table conversation centers on the new fur she must have, or why she doubled four spades in last night's bridge game.

And then there's another thing. Do you really help your husband in his own work of making enough money to take care of you? Or do you dishearten him by comparing your six-room home with the fine new home Bill Jones has just bought for his wife?

The most unlovely wife in the world is like the one James Montgomery Flagg wrote the poem about—the one who left her husband because he couldn't keep her in a style she'd been accustomed to.

Have you ever stopped to think about the courage of husbands as a whole? They go out every day to do work not half so interesting as your own varied task of housekeeping. You're in your own home where you can keep your own hours, where you're free to stop any time for a telephone chat with Margie, for a stroll with the baby, or a matinee.

Your husband probably has a "boss," and works under the strain of constant competition besides. Men's positions are far from being the sinecures we women imagine them to be.

No man can go out in the morning and do his best work whose wife has just shown him a great sheaf of bills that can't be paid for months or who has cried because he can't afford to buy her the new dress she craves. He is handicapped from the start.

The woman who is doing everything in her power to make her home a harbor of peace and comfort the one who sends her husband out to the daily battle freshened in body and spirit, is the only one who is honestly keeping her part of the marriage contract.

It's a woman-size job, this wife business.

Suggestions for Simple Christmas Toys

(Mrs. H. S. Elam)

Having to economize, and having five children, I have learned to make a number of toys at home which afford a great deal of happiness. You know, it doesn't take a lot of expensive toys to make children happy.

And all of us want our children to carry pleasant memories of Christmas at home, through all their lives.

A very attractive doll cradle for a small doll may be made from a round carton such as salt and oatmeal come in. Cut out an opening lengthwise on top, nearly as long as the box. Have both ends of the box glued on. Glue gaily colored cretonne on smoothly to cover the cradle. Make a tiny mattress and pillow to fit. Next bend a wire at one end and fasten to stand at head as a support for a canopy. Let the canopy be a piece of white muslin caught together over the wire with a small bow of ribbon.

A small wooden box may be made into a wagon, using wire for axles and spools for wheels. Paint bright red, and how fine the children think it is.

Tops made of a spool cut in half, the end whittled to a point, and a wooden peg run through center and sharpened, the tops then painted, are pretty and neat and please the boys.

A little trunk may be made by covering a small wooden box with heavy brown paper, inside and out. Make a top and fasten with small hinges. Colored pictures pasted on ends, front and back, and on top and inside cover make it very pretty.

I make dolls and animals from white oilcloth, stuffed with cotton and features worked in red. Two dots for nose, a slightly curved line for mouth, and larger dots for eyes, or two buttons may be used for eyes and baby will work for hours trying to pull them off. But the best part about it is that these unbreakable toys may be washed and kept clean.

Any little girl would be proud of a four-poster bed made by using eight large spools, two for each leg. Fasten a light board the size desired and make the four posts with more spools, paint or varnish, and fit with mattress, pillows and covers.—Farm and Ranch.

The crossword puzzle is all the rage now, so I am going to rub one each week in this paper. This week I am giving both a puzzle and its answer so that those who have not given much time to the method of working out the things may get the idea. After this I shall give the puzzle one week and the answer the week following.

Tulsa—Seventy-seven new oil wells drilled in Oklahoma during one week.

Farm Column

Don't forget the county poultry show which will be held here December 15-21. That is only a week off now and those who expect to enter some of their birds will have to get busy. Even if you do not enter the competition, come and see the show, anyway. It is worth anyone's time to see what is produced in Pontotoc county.

Some do not appear to fully understand about the entries. The rules provide that there must be three or more entries for one to win first money. This does not necessarily mean that there must be three different persons in competition. One person can make three entries of his own and it will be the same as if three different ones entered. For instance, one may enter three cockerels, three hens, three pullets and so on and let them all be judged and may win all prizes for that class.

GIANT ZEPPELIN READY FOR TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC

Favorable Weather Conditions
Makes Start Sunday
Possible

ON NORTHERN ROUTE

Determined Man Attempts
To Board Giant Ship
For Passage

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin director in charge of the dirigible, ZR-3, upon receipt of weather reports which indicated that the north Atlantic was clearing, announced that the start of the flight from Friedrichshafen to Kakehurst, N. J., would be made tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock and that the northern route as originally planned would be followed.

According to present intentions the giant airship will cross the occupied area, northern Belgium, Holland, the English channel, Lands End, England, and then out to sea, shaping her course according to weather reports from land stations and ocean vessels. In announcing the time for the start and probably route, which would be followed, Dr. Eckener declared:

"The weather man promises a cool morning and we think we have the hoodoo baffled at last. If all goes well, we will be over New York city some time Wednesday."

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—The flight of the Zeppelin ZR-3 from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, New Jersey, the start which had been announced for this morning was suddenly postponed at the last minute until 6 o'clock tomorrow.

While no formal statement was forthcoming from the manager of the Zeppelin work where the great dirigible was built for the United States navy it was said that Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the works and commander of the ship, had discovered that the ZR-3 was loaded with more than it could comfortably carry.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 11.—The police this afternoon detained an unidentified man dressed in hunting clothes and carrying a rifle, who was found loitering around the ZR-3 hangar. He had announced his determination to go to the United States aboard the dirigible or, failing in this, to shoot Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin company in charge of the airship. The police declined to reveal the man's name, but they said he was a German.

M. Nelson, his campaign director, waited to lay before him the program for his campaign here.

Davis, the Democratic nominee and Senator Wheeler, candidate for vice-president on the Independent ticket had spoke.

OKLAHOMA TAKES IN CORNHUSKERS

Sooners Upset Dope and Win
From Powerful Team
From Nebraska

(By the Associated Press)

NORMAN, Oct. 11.—For the first time since the World war the Nebraska Cornhuskers lost to a Missouri valley conference eleven today taking a 14-7 defeat at the hands of the Oklahoma Sooners.

Scoring their first touchdown within one minute after the game opened, the Sooners held the lead throughout. They outplayed the conference champions in every department except punting and in every period except the third. In this period Nebraska made its only score. With the wind to their backs the Nebraskaans opened with a determined drive down the field culminating on a pass, bloodgood to Collins, the latter racing across the line, bloodgood kicked goal. After this the Huskers were impotent against the Sooner defense.

Oklahoma's first score came when Woodall smothered an attempted punt by bloodgood picked up the ball and darted across the line. The second touchdown came in the second period when Lamb clinched a brilliant Sooner march down the field by diving over tackle for a yard and goal. Bristow's toe added the extra point in each instance.

It was the first conference game for both teams. The Huskers entered as one sided favorites following their feat of holding the powerful Illinois eleven to 9-6 scores last Saturday and the defeat of the Sooners by Central Teachers College 2-0 the same day.

Landis Pays High Tribute to Walter Johnson as Pitcher

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Tribute was paid to Walter Johnson today, by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the czar of organized baseball, during a flying visit to the supreme court this morning enroute to the railroad station.

"Walter Johnson never had a faster ball 20 years ago," Judge Landis said. "He had perfect control and could put it over the plate within a fraction of an inch of where he wanted it to go. I want to go on record as saying that yesterday's struggle was a perfect game not only from the view of spectators in the stand, but also from an artistic point of view. I never had seen anything like it before and probably never will again. I regard it as the greatest game ever played."

COTTON GINNING IN COUNTY JUMPS

Approximately 12,000 Bales
Now Ginned in County,
Reports Show

With the prolonged period of fair weather cotton picking probably passed the half-way mark last week. The total amount ginned in Pontotoc is close to 12,000 bales, counting round bales as halves, and with the recent cotton the gins have in storage the figures are a trifle over the above.

Figures obtained by The News Saturday showed 11,755 bales ginned and ginneries of Ada estimated that they paid at least 200 bales in storage and that other gins in the county held as much or more.

The figures given below were obtained by phone from the various places indicated with the exception of Pithburgh. All except Maxwell and Beebe were reached in the morning and the figures from the Ada gins were obtained about 3 p. m. The figures for Friday are as follows:

Allen 1705; Vanoss 551; Stonewall 2,080; Francis 200; Frisco 647; Ada 4,196; Pithburgh 1,755; B-bee 217; Maxwell 373; Roff 1501.

The federal census bureau's report places the number ginned prior to October 1 at 6,915 bales, hence about half of the season's output has been turned out in the past two weeks.

For the entire season of last year the total for the county was 8,898 bales of which 3,157 was ginned prior to October 1, and for 1922 crop was between 11,000 and 12,000 bales.

Up to 3:30 Saturday afternoon the county weigher had handled 4,104 bales, 353 bales of associated cotton had been received and 300 round bales ginned in Ada, making the total for Ada 4,613 bales, or a trifle more than one-third of the county's total.

Saturday was a heavy day for the gins of Ada, receipts being unusually large.

The local market was about the same as Friday, prices ranging from 23.50 downward, the price sagging somewhat in the afternoon.

Registrars Warned To Uermit Voters Franchise Rights

(By the Associated Press)

MUSKOGEE, Oct. 11.—A warning to county registrars throughout eastern Oklahoma to "permit all qualified voters to register and vote in the November election" was issued today by Frank Lee, United States district attorney.

"If registration officers can be permitted to arbitrarily say who can vote," he declared in a letter to registrars, "all elections would be farces, for the whole matter would be in their hands. It should be the policy to encourage citizens to vote rather than to prevent them from exercising this most sacred right of citizenship."

Five Thousand Teachers Wait For Salaries

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.—More than 5,000 teachers in Oklahoma public schools are waiting to receive salaries due them for work last year while litigation over the constitutionality of a $650,000 weak school district fund is being determined.

According to N. A. Nash, state superintendent of schools, 5,303 teachers in 1,039 school districts are due money for services performed last year. In several instances banks advanced money to the school trustees to pay teachers' salaries but the majority of the teachers completed their year's work without receiving any salary.

The appropriation voted by the legislature last March was intended to give aid to school districts unable to finance the remainder of the school term. On the advice of Nash most of the teachers in the weak districts remained at work, hoping to receive their salaries early in the summer.

A suit filed in the district court at Muskogee by Fred L. Miller sought to restrain state officers from disbursing the money. The petition was denied. Miller appealed to the state supreme court and again the petition was denied. A new hearing however has been granted.

SHIDLER BANK ROBBERY ATTACK IS FRUSTRATED

(By the Associated Press)

PAWTHUSKA, Oct. 11.—An attempt to rob the First National Bank of Shidler was frustrated today after a gun battle in which two of the three alleged bandits were wounded and the third captured.

The bandits who had entered the bank soon after it opened this morning and overpowered the three occupants, were engaged in looting the institution when they were observed by a passerby who gave the alarm and a citizens' posse opened fire. None but the marauders was injured.

The names of the captured were not given in the first report to Pawthuska. It was said that one of the men was shot in the head and another in the body. The third surrendered.

Cashier Cantrell, H. D. Henson, a customer, and Miss Nichols, telegraph operator for the bank who were the only persons in the building escaped injury during the shooting by throwing themselves prone on the floor.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.—George Wilson, candidate of the Farm-Labor party for United States senate was repudiated in a statement issued today by J. W. Houchin, state chairman of the Farm-Labor party. The party executive committee will be convened at once to discuss the situation thus created.

Houchin said his statement was issued following investigation of reports that Wilson was "trying to sell out to other political parties." It has been reported, Houchin said, that Wilson wrote out his withdrawal as a candidate and gave it to O. A. Brewer, Democratic candidate for corporation commissioner, who is said to have approached Democratic state officials with the Wilson withdrawal and an offer by Wilson to cease his Farm-Labor campaign activities provided he be given a state position. The proposal was refused by an official of the Trapp administration. It is said Brewer denied today that he had any part in the affair.

COOLIDGE TELLS WORKERS OF AIM OF GOVERNMENT

Working Cooperation Between
Business and Public
Stressed

TO HEINZ EMPLOYEES

Claims Government Must be
Servant of Public
Welfare

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Working cooperation between business and the public "in accord with dictates of common sense" was held up tonight by President Coolidge in an address by radio to the employees of the H. J. Heinz Company gathered at banquets in various cities to celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the business.

The supremacy of the government has been the main motive, dominating the economic and political development of recent years, he said, adding that it has brought public interest into collision with modern industry.

But the government, Mr. Coolidge declared, prefers to let business go its own way, so long as that is the right way; so long as it is the way for honest and genuine service to real public interest.

The government, he continued, must be the servant of the public welfare and the creation of an informed public opinion.

"It cannot be dominated by any privilege," the President warned. "It cannot be subservient to any private advantage. It must represent the public. There are encouraging signs of readiness to go further in the same way. The government will surely be prepared to give all encouragement to such a program, for by these methods only shall we bring about a proper balance and secure an adjustment between individual interest and harmony with the highest consideration of the national welfare."

"The people may be assured that they will be protected in the ownership of their property," Mr. Coolidge insisted, "as the control of such property will maintain their supremacy over their government."

"They know," he added, "when the government begins to own property, it begins to own people. They want all these powers in their own hands."

"It is the firm policy of the American people," the President declared, "to insist that business firms and methods shall be subordinated to the public interest."

In this regard, he said, public authority represented by the attitude of the people is one of moderation in dealing with these difficult and complex problems.

HOLDENVILLE WINS OVER MCCOY'S TEAM

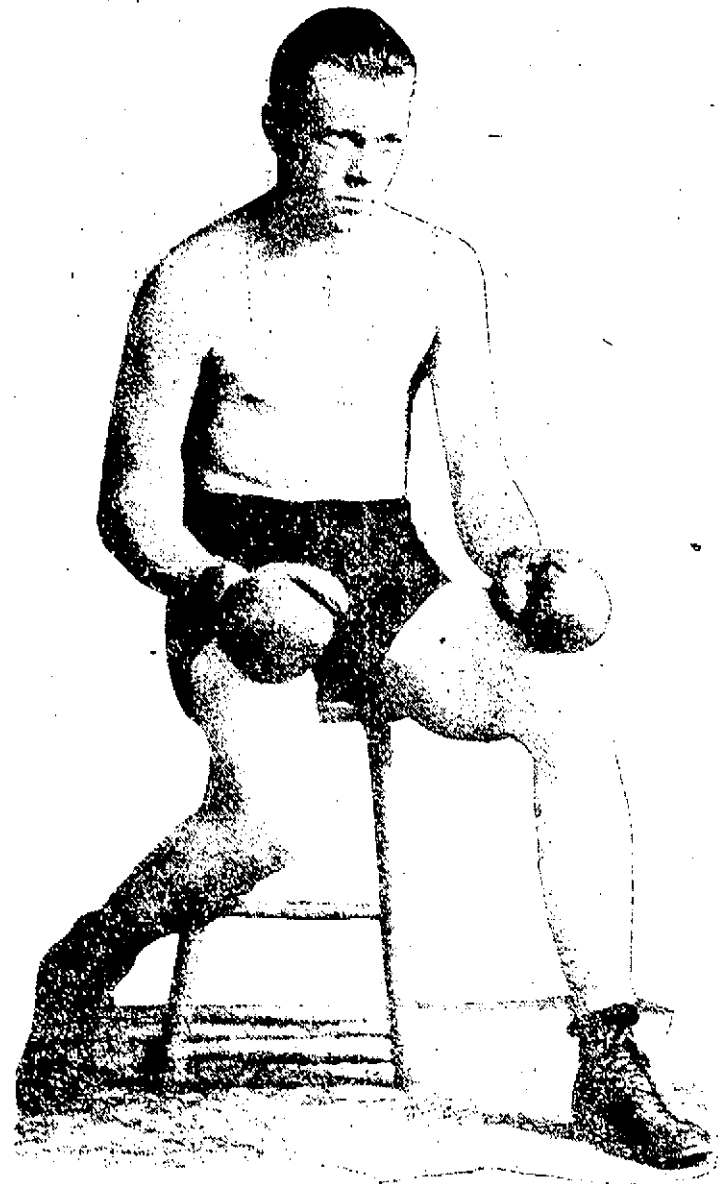

Ed Brent's Eleven Stages
Second Victory of Season

HOLDENVILLE, Oct. 11.—(Special.)—In one of the hardest fought games ever played on a Holdenville gridiron, Holdenville defeated Jimmie McCoy's eleven from Seminole Friday, 12 to 6. Two field goals, one from the 32-yard line, one from the 30 and a touchdown marked the total made by Holdenville while Seminole scored in the second quarter on a forward pass.

Holdenville took the lead early in the first quarter when Bagwell, fullback, dropped back and sent a 32-yard place kick squarely between the goal posts. From this point on Holdenville started a defensive game, punting at every advantage. At the beginning of the second quarter, Seminole scored the ball in the field and by a series of linebacks and end runs went to within 20 yards of Holdenville's goal, a lateral pass to a halfback carried it over for Seminole's only marker. Just before the half closed Seminole attempted to kick from her own 20-yard line, the play was blocked. Toller recovered and went over for a touchdown. In this same quarter Bagwell made another place kick from the 30 yard line. This ended the play for the first half.

The last half was a fight from the start till the whistle. Seminole rallied on the kickoff and marched with the ball down to the 5-yard line but lost on downs. Bagwell kicked. Seminole returned and started another march for the goal but failed in the shadow of the goal post on downs. Holdenville kept the ball well out of danger from this point never letting it enter into their territory. The game was clean and hard fought. Seminole has a wonderful team and the teams were about evenly matched in weight. There was lots of clean fight but few penalties. Seminole was defeated by Shawnee about a week ago in an hours hard scrimmage 7 to 0 and that a fluke.

Story arrived Saturday from Oklahoma City and appeared in public workout Saturday afternoon to a number of appreciative fans, who are boasting that he shows some real stuff with the gloves.

A. B. Dixon, who is managing the bout, states that a number of lively preliminaries will be offered to appease the appetite of the fans before the going sounds for the ten-round bout between Stone and Story.

PURCELL LOSES TO DUNCAN TEAM

Hard Fought Battle Goes to
Duncan in Conference
Game

PURCELL, Oct. 11. (Special.)—Purcell lost her second conference game Friday to Duncan, 19 to 15. Duncan came to Purcell with about 50 points on the local boys by the Purcell High School, drove through the Duncan line and around tackle almost at will only to be downed in the latter part of the game by old Man Jinks with Wells and Valier the two Purcell backs, carrying the ball through the line the line the locals drove over the first touchdown in the first quarter. Kennedy kicked the goal with a drop kick. In the second quarter Duncan got away with a long forward pass and scored. They drove through the line for the extra point. Purcell high school came right back and drove over for the 2nd touchdown and Kennedy missed goal. The first half ended with the score 13 to 7 in favor of Purcell.

The second half ended by Purcell rushing Duncan back to the goal line twice only to lose on fumbles. When within kicking distance of the goal late in the third quarter Everett, fullback, in attempting to make a forward pass fumbled. Leeman for Duncan recovered and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Mitchell missed goal and the score remained 13-13 until the last 15 seconds of play when Mitchell drove over for the last count making the final score 19-13.

Much improvement was shown by Purcell High school over her previous games. In the line Perkinson, Cobb and Kennedy showed unexpected strength. VALENTINO RETURNS IN "MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"

Rudolph Valentino's first week in a motion picture studio since 1922 was a strenuous one. Out at the Paramount Long Island studio, where he made "Monsieur Beaucaire" under the direction of Sigmund Oleoff, the popular star was besieged by friends who wanted to wish him well and to witness the launching of the picture, which brings Valentino back under the Paramount banner.

The week opened with the star giving a luncheon party for the members of the cast and staff which was to produce "Beaucaire." It was a fellowship luncheon, and Mr. Valentino, in informal talk, drove home the fact that it was not a Valentino picture they were about to make, but "Monsieur Beaucaire" and that everyone in the cast was just as important as he.

On the following day, the official opening of the picture, forty newspaper men and magazine writers were guests at a luncheon at the studio, given as a welcome to the star. In spite of all visitors Director Oleoff succeeded in working every day and scene after scene were completed in rapid succession until now the picture, the greatest thing Valentino has ever attempted, is ready for the picture and opens a two days run Monday at the McSwain theatre.

OKLAHOMA UNIVERSITY READY FOR BASKETBALL

NORMAN, Oct. 11.—(Special.)—With five letter men and four of last year's regular squad reporting for practice three times a week, Coach Hugh V. McDermott of the University of Oklahoma hopes to have a basketball squad ready to start the season in championship form when Nebraska opens the schedule here January 10.

The letter men who are reporting for workouts are: Floyd McBridge, all Missouri Valley conference forward; John Dunlap, guard; Richard Wheeler, center; Maurice Ruppert, forward and Dewey Goodwin, forward. Other players practicing are: Carol Honen; Carl West, Richard West and Gene West.

More than a score of football men will change their mole skins for basketball suits after Thanksgiving, and Ledford, Wondall and Haller are expected to make a strong bid for places on McDermott's first string.

Four all-state high school stars of last year are reporting for regular practice, and an exceptionally fast freshman team is assured. Victor Holt, Oklahoma City center, and Harvey Harrison, El Reno forward, who opposed each other in the final game of the high school championship last year are contributors to the Oklahoma squad. Leslie Niblack, center of Shawnee, and Bennett Story, Durant forward, who were placed on the second all-state team last year are also reporting.

Mrs. Homer Wood and Mrs. W. J. Coffman left today for Oklahoma City.

WESTERN MOUNTAINS REPEAT STRAINS OF DISTANT MUSIC

(By the Associated Press)
TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 10.—Accounts of strange music coming out of space in the vicinity of Spirit Lake and Mount St. Helena have been received here recently.

Albert Weiss, who had business in the Spirit Lake region in connection with mining claims, asserted that he heard the music, which included arias from some of the operas. Weiss's story was not taken seriously until August Fryc, superintendent of a Tacoma laundry, who had never met Weiss, reported the same thing. Both men said the music was heard between 9 and 11 o'clock at night.

The tale has led to the supposition that radio waves from broadcasting stations have been picked up by ledges of minerals in that wild region, and reflected back as sound.

FOX SCREEN VERSION OF NEW BOOK IS GENUINE TREAT

When William Fox produced a motion picture version of "The Shadow of the East" he did it as thoroughly and as effectively as we believe was possible. The finished work will be shown for the first time Monday at the American theatre.

The successor to "The Sheik," also from the pen of E. M. Hull, is a pulsating, throbbing colorful tale of the East and West, particularly the East. It concerns an English peer who has entered into an Indian marriage with a native girl who kills herself when she believes his love is waning. This shadow casts itself over the Englishman's life to the extent that when he meets the girl of his own race whom he loves, it nearly wrecks his life and hers.
Frank Mayo as the Earl of Craven,
Mildred Harris as the girl and Evelyn Brent as Lolaine, the Indian bride, do excellent work. Norman Kerry, as Said, the Sheik, who is also in love with the English girl but who, contrary to the habits of peers of the desert, steps aside in favor of his friend, Craven, gives his usual excellent performance.

MRS. HUNTER ENTERTAINING WITH TWO-DAY PARTY

A bright old colonial "full moon" beamed down upon the retreat of the witches, bats, snakes, goblins and ghosts in their huts of harvest corn and grain in the shock, with here and there a wild old black cat wandering in and out to remind that he was the arbiter of the fate of the many guests who were invited to their hunts by Mrs. E. C. Hunter on Thursday and Friday afternoons to play bridge.

The home of Mrs. E. C. Hunter at Pleasant View had been completely given over to the spirits of Halloween and their pranks for these festive occasions, and from the entrance hall to the servants of the refreshments of a salad course with bats and goblins, and a "halloween brew" served from the witches' cauldron hung as it tripped, to the awarding of the prizes which had been held in the "bag of tricks", one was under the spell of the weird and mysterious hosts from No-Man's-Land.

Mrs. Hunter was assisted in serving by her daughter, Moseley, and Mrs. Wesley Chaney. Guests for the series of parties included:

Mesdames Blanks, Gibrath, Maeson, Hope, Haraway, Hugh Biles, W. H. Ebey, Wayne Evans, C. V. Gowing, Johnson, Roff, Harris, King, Manville, P. A. Norris, Parker, Roharmel, Becker, Skirvin, W. W. SHINGLED HAIR

Most of the girls are having their hair almost all cut off in the back pretty nearly.

These haircuts look bad when curled but when combed straight looks worse. These haircuts are funny looking the hair is cut close to the head in the back and left long enough to braid the side, unless combed right, it looks like the barber dropped his sizzers just before the girls went to the shop, these haircuts are called "shingled haircuts."

The hair after being cut in this manner must always be parted in the same place or else it will not look even, this aggravates the girls and sometimes makes em late for school, cause she can't part it in the same place twice.

The origin of shingles is interesting. This is the way it happened. One day a certain young sissy lady went to the hair shop and she told the barber to stop cutting until she told him to stop. Unfortunately she dozed off in to dreamland. The results: shingled bobs. Moral: Don't go to sleep in the barbers chair, girls, or another revolution may result. But, if you're a popular young sissy girl, it will be all right because all the other girls will think it is the latest fad.

“Your a feckshone wife,
“D. Franklin.”

The French widow was Madame Helvetius, the wife of the well-known philosopher. The salon of Madame was a famous one in Paris, in spite of the fact that she was getting along in years, and when Franklin visited the French capital he was naturally brought to this meeting place of wit and fashion. A strong affection sprang up between the great American and Madame Helvetius, and one that scandalized his own people. A poignant view of the affair from this angle was given by Abigail Adams, wife of President Adams, in a letter home. Part of this communication follows:

“She entered the room with a careless, sweeping air; upon seeing the ladies, who were strangers to her, she bowed out, ‘Ah, mon Dieu, where is Franklin? Why did you not tell me there were ladies here? You must suppose her speaking all this in French. ‘How I look!’ said she, taking hold of a chemise made of tiffany which she had on over a blue lute string, and which looked, as much upon the decay as her own beauty; for she was once a handsome woman; her hair was frizzled; over it she had a small straw hat with a dirty gauze half-handkerchief around it, and a bit of drier gauze than ever my maids wore bowed on behind. She ran out of the room and when she returned the Doctor entered at one door and she at the other; upon which she ran forward to him, gave him a double kiss, one upon each cheek, and another upon his forehead. When he went into the room to dine she was placed between the Doctor and Mr. Adams. She carried on the chief conversation at dinner, frequently locking her hands into the Doctor’s; and sometimes spreading her arms upon the backs of both gentlemen’s chairs, then throwing her arms carelessly upon the Doctor’s neck.”

Of Franklin’s affectionate correspondence with Madame Helvetius the following is a brief sample, sent in reply to an appointment made with him by the lady, the rendezvous being a place called “Turgot’s.”

“Mr. Franklin never forgets any party at which Madame Helvetius is expected. He even believes, that if he were engaged to go to Paradise this morning, he would pray for permission to remain on earth until half past one in order to receive the embrace promised him at Turgot’s.”

Before his marriage to Debby, Franklin was involved in another love affair which resulted in the birth of a natural son, William. This child was taken into Franklin’s home which, as historians have observed, was rather a peculiar wedding present for his wife. The boy was brought up by Mrs. Franklin as her own child and the father did all he could for him, eventually making him governor of New Jersey.

Mindanao Now Prepared To Enter Rubber Market.

MANILA, Oct. 11.—Actual quality production of crude rubber for the market will start in Cotabato province, island of Mindanao, within a month, it was announced today. A shipment of machinery for a rubber plant was made recently from Zamboanga to Cotabato, consigned to the Rio Grande Rubber Estate at Kabacan, Cotabato, and it is expected the installation will be made by the end of August. The company has a large number of trees just maturing and it expects to add further acreage. It already has a considerable acreage which will mature within a few years.

While small shipments of crude rubber have been made from the Philippines for several years, they have attracted little attention in the market.

TRAINING SCHOOL GROWING BETTER STRONGER FORCE

All Grades Filled With Pupils And Others Turned Away

During the past two years this department of the College has made a very substantial growth. At the present time, practically every grade has the maximum number of children, and in some of the grades the maximum was reached the first day of school, and many children were refused enrollment because of lack of room.

The practice teachers are showing a fine spirit and seem to realize that the practice school is the laboratory of the College where they can apply the theory which they have learned in other departments.

Miss Mattie Lyday and Miss Gertrude Montgomery of the Primary and Intermediate grade departments respectively are both back from a year’s leave of absence which they spent at Peabody College, Nashville, Tennessee.

Miss Vera Daggs has the fifth and sixth grades. The members of the Junior High School staff of supervisors are Mr. Zimmerman, Principal, Mr. Parker, and Mrs. Mackin.

Mr. Zimmerman spent the summer quarter at Peabody College doing graduate work. He is making a study of secondary education and is coming to be considered an authority in this field.

The Manual Arts department is under the direction of Mr. Mackin. The work in the fifth grade and extends through the Junior High School.

The Home Economics work which also begins in the fifth grade and extends through the ninth is supervised by Miss Francisco, the head of the department of Home Economics in the College.

Mr. Clark head of the department of public school art is supervising public school art through all the grades of the training school.

The work in public school music is supervised by Miss Donaldson, who is head of the department of public school music.

Never in the history of the training school, has there been a stronger corps of supervisors at work at the same time. Any student who has taken the training in this department should go out into the public schools of the district equipped to render excellent service in their chosen line of work.

There has been much new equipment added. There have also been many new books and magazines added.

The training school has long felt the need of a library of its own and this year for the first time a room has been set aside for that purpose. The library will operate under the direction of Mr. Harrison, the College Librarian. Miss Harrison will have charge of the books and will catalog them in order that they may be issued in the regular way. A very choice selection of books has been made and there is not a child in the training school that cannot secure a book suited to its age and grade.

The training school as a whole is under the direction of Mr. Robinson, head of the department of Education, who says that never before in his experience has the training school had the opportunity to have as successful a year as it has this time.

An Oklahoma editor, just about to go to press, “piled” a couple of articles, one concerning a public sale and the other a write-up of a wedding. He asked the make-up man to get the two articles together, and he did; but here is how he put the two together. The “mixture” was not known to the editor until an angry preacher and the mother of the bride appeared on the scene.

“William Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were disposed of at public auction at my barn one mile east of a beautiful cluster of roses on her breast before a background of farm implements too numerous to mention in the presence of about seventy guests, including two million cows, six mules and one bobbed. Rev. Jackson tied the nuptial knot with two hundred feet of hay rope, and the bridal couple left on an extended trip, with terms to suit for an purchaser. They will be at home to their friends with one good buggy and a few kitchen utensils after ten months from date of sale to responsible party and some fifty chickens.—Ex.

THE VALUE OF TODAY

Today is a very small space—only a lightning flash in the dark, but out of the vast ocean of eternity today is all that is really ours. We wake in the morning with no knowledge of where our souls have been wandering while our senses slept.

The yesterdays are gone forever, the tomorrows are unborn. Today, alone, is ours to be spent wisely and profitably or squandered and lost forever. If we spend each day as we should we need not worry about the yesterdays or the tomorrows, as the yesterdays are made up of today, and the tomorrows will soon be today.

Our door and if we do not admit her, then she is gone forever for the same opportunity knocks but once. So let us spend each day as we should—not putting off until tomorrow the duties which we should perform today.

—Mrs. E. H. Johnson.

SPECIAL SCHOOL TAX CARRIES AT ARDMORE

(By the Associated Press)
ARDMORE.—By a vote of two to one, Ardmore voters approved an extra levy of 5.35 mills for school maintenance Friday. Nineteen hundred votes were cast. Approximately $60,000 dollars is needed in order to fix the school budget, which suffered because of decreased valuation and a loss of $15 per capita recently invalidated by the supreme court.

THE RANDOM SHOT

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell in the distance, I knew not where,
Till a neighbor said it killed his calf
And I had to pay him ten and a half.
I bought some poison to slay some rats
And a neighbor swore it killed his cats
And rather than argue across the fence
I paid him four dollars and fifty cents.
One night I set sailing a toy balloon,
And hoped it would soar till it reached the moon,
But the candle fell in a farmer’s straw,
And he said I must settle or go to law.
And that is the way of the Random Shot—
It never hits the proper spot.
And the joke you spring, that you think so smart,
May leave a wound in the other fellow’s heart.

—Buckshot.

I Am Photography!

NOT PURSE PROUD, I AM WITHIN REACH OF ALL

The photographic profession has found it well-nigh impossible to standardize prices for photographic portraits. A comparison of prices charged by different studios reveals nothing to the layman unless they understand the extent to which workmanship and material enter into figuring the cost of the photograph.

The skill of the artist at the camera, the cleverness of the retoucher’s pencil touch. The ability of the printer to produce a permanent and pleasing tone to the print. The quality of paper on which the portrait is made. Style and quality of the mounting.

Judged by these factors it can be readily seen that 75% of the cost of a photograph is reckoned on skilled labor.

We believe our prices to be eminently fair. When you present a Stall photograph to a friend, you do so with pride—not an apology. Our new Holiday folders are here and to say they are beautiful is putting it mild—they are exquisite.

We will make your holiday work now and deliver it when you wish.

The Christian Spirit

“This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you.—John 15:12.

THE Christian Spirit consists in love, the desire to give to others the best one has. And what can be so good, so desirable to impart, as the very spirit of Love, which is Christianity itself? To meet criticism with kindness, crossness with geniality, insult with courtesy and injury with charity, is the way to conquer the world.

As in the life of the Master, so in the life of ever faithful disciple, the cross must be borne, the perpetual sacrifice must be made, as the price of Love’s presence in a world of selfishness and hate; but the cross is transfigured into a crown of rejoicing, the sacrifice is transformed into privilege and pleasure by those precious personal relationships which are supreme glory and gladness of the soul.

The sacrifice that the Christian makes to get his Father’s will, his Master’s mission, is like the sacrifice a mother makes for her sick and suffering child—the dearest and sweetest experience of life. The cross thus gladly borne, the yoke of sacrifice thus unostentatiously assumed, is the supreme expression of the Christian Spirit.

Public Schools

Every element in our social fabric is primarily and fundamentally dependant upon the latent mental, moral and physical forces in the boy and girl of today. What we want and what we hope to be as a nation must and will come from what the institutions of today put out into the hearts, heads and hands of these boys and girls. The inter-relationship and the mutual responsibility of the home, the church and the school are the three major factors that will determine the weal or woe of the individual boy and girl and the destiny of the nation as a whole. Pertinent to this situation, the following from Judge Ben Lindsey of the juvenile court of Colorado, deserves careful consideration.

"I think the schools are responsible for juvenile delinquency, because their teachings of human conduct is more in abstract generalities backed by platitudes and cant, rather than what I would call concrete cases. The church is responsible, because it holds up fear, hell fire and damnation, if not literally, in a milder form. And I quite agree that it is a sign of omission rather than a sign of commission, for I have great respect for the school and the church, and when I make suggestions concerning them I am always keep in mind how much good they really do. You ask almost any child his reason of motive for righteous conduct, and he will answer in some form of fear—"I'll go to jail," "I'll get a licking," "I'll go to hell," etc. When they get it into their heads that everything is half a lie, this sort of restraint ceases to hold them in line. And when they see the awful justice, or rather uneven-headed justice all about them, they get cynical, and consciously or subconsciously much of their teaching turns into a gospel of "lie all you can," "cheat all you can," "steal all you can," "profiteer all you can" so long as you don't get caught.

I think a great deal can be done through training of women who are going to be the mothers of the race but this must be done while they are children.

I am far more interested in getting justice, health, and beauty, for example, for women than I am in morality for women. The world has been more or less hysterical over women's morality—especially the schools. If you mention to any of the schools that many of the girls have gone "wrong" they resent it, because they are thinking of their pride, like foolish mothers who always at first resent it when they find their girls have been unchaste. Their whole attitude does more to promote the idea of "be afraid to get caught" but "don't be afraid to go wrong," just be clever enough to "get away with it"—as so many do and actually succeed, as the world judges success. Another difficulty is that the schools do not know the truth about children or about life, and therefore many of them are unfit to deal with the subject. I believe morality can be best reached through justice, health, and beauty, and teaching these things, than it can through stupidity and cant, left ad pride.

BETTER PRODUCTION SEEN BY OIL MEN IN COUNTY

OIL DEFLATION PEAK NOW PAST

Large Interests Believe Development Trend Now In View

That the bottom of the oil deflation has been reached and that a trend upward can be expected almost immediately, taking along with the upward trend great development in Pontotoc County, is the opinion expressed by oil men interviewed Saturday.

Many of the larger companies, such as the Dixie, the Carter, the T. & P. and others are buying acreage or already have good blocks completed, and it is expected that they will begin developing in the near future. From all reports obtainable, no part of the county is to be neglected, unless it is certain sections of the southern end where water has been found in the Simpson sands.

The fact that many of the officers of the Pilgrim Petroleum Company are on the ground and are expected to be here several days is taken as example of the interest oil men are showing in the Pontotoc County fields.

Mr. Clarence B. Davison, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Pilgrim Petroleum Company, is visiting Ada and looking over the rather extensive holdings of the Pilgrim company.

Mr. Davison was one of the pioneer gas men who helped pipe Ada with natural gas back in 1913. At this time Mr. Davison spent considerable time in Ada and has never lost his keen interest in the town of Ada and his faith in the development of oil and gas in Pontotoc County.

Mr. Davis was here in the spring of this year and coming back again this fall, has been pleased to confirm his impressions of the improved appearance, the growth, and better morale of the town of Ada.

Mr. Davison and his associates have never lost their faith in the ultimate development of Pontotoc county as an oil and gas field.

The Pilgrim Petroleum company has done much in the last year to increase and improve their holdings in Pontotoc county.

Mr. Davison is much pleased with the Pilgrim's affiliation with the Texas Pacific company in the drilling of the old gas field one mile west of town, as he appreciates what it means to Pontotoc county to bring so strong a company into the active development of this county and hopes and believes it is only the forerunner of many more deals of this character.

Oil Activity

Jack Lloyd is drilling at 2815 feet in section 4-2-7, four miles east of Ada.

The Douglas Oil company is drilling at 2700 feet in section 12-5-9, east of Allen.

Brinson & Boyd are spudding at 100 feet in section 32-5-5, Bebe field. This is in the same territory as the discovery well in the Bebe territory. The discovery well, which was brought in by Carter, Nance and LaSelle, in 1921, is still producing.

W. J. Bryan has resumed operations in his well on the Palmer farm in section 18-4-6 at a depth of 512 feet.

The Pilgrim Petroleum company is setting the 8-inch casing at 1300 feet in section 27-4-6, on North Mississippi avenue.

The Texas and Pacific Oil company is rigging up and will be ready to spud in the first of the week in section 31-4-6, just west of the city.

The American Oil and Refining company is making record time in section 16-4-6. This well is now 1100 feet deep and has been drilling only a little more than two weeks. A rotary outfit is being used.

The same company is not making such rapid progress in section 3-4-6 with standard tools. Beginning about the same time as in section 16, the operators have reached 650 feet.

Both tests are looking satisfactory, the first one mentioned showing similar formations to those shown in the gas wells drilled about a mile west.

The other wells show little change.

Carvings in Nevada Caves Traced to Early Chinese

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., Oct. 11.—Wired rock writings in caves ten miles northeast of here are to be studied with a view to determining whether they are the work of Indians, as heretofore supposed, or of ancient Chinese.

Gee Ding, Chinese student at the University of Nevada, made a visit to the caves recently and expressed belief that the writings are Chinese and depict a story of ancient Buddhist priests, an attempt to circumnavigate the globe and of the landing on this continent.

It is legend in China, according to Gee Ding, that long ago, perhaps thousands of years back, five ships under command of Buddhist priests set sail and never returned. Gee Ding believes it may be possible the writings were made by these people.

HIS FAVORITE SONG

By Jackson V. Jacobs

Central Press.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Out of the maze of falsehoods and half-truths about the Russian situation which, the world, and the United States, in particular, has been flooded, emerges unmistakable evidence that the soviet government is facing its greatest and most ominous crisis.

Crises are nothing new in Russia. But where heretofore the crises have been mainly of political or military character, caused by revolts of soviet opponents and by attempts at intervention by foreign nations, the present crisis is purely economic and therefore much more difficult to cope with.

Politically, it must be admitted, the soviet government has never been stronger than at present. Counter-revolutionary armies have been beaten over and over. Foreign nations which, under some pretext or another, attempted to invade Russia, failed no better than the counter-revolutionists.

The Cause of the Trouble

Official soviet reports, as well as communications from foreign correspondents in Moscow, indicate a gradual improvement in Russia's productivity, accompanied by a notable increase in domestic and foreign trade. But opponents of the soviet regime, call attention to the prevailing condition of economic disorganization and to a general state of affairs which, if continued, may result in the greatest catastrophe Russia has yet witnessed.

As a result of six years of soviet policy in Russia the balance between the city and the village, between agriculture and industry, has been seriously disturbed. The upshot of this situation is that the manufactured goods produced by the cities are beyond the reach of the peasants who need them. On the other hand, the failure of the peasants to buy the city's goods, leaves the workers in the factories without money to buy the farmer's products. Thus a vicious circle has been built up.

Foreign Trade Affords No Relief

And foreign trade does not afford relief. Last year Russia exported some grain. The Soviet Republic thus entered into competition with the rest of the world. The price of the Russian grain was therefore determined not by conditions in Russia, but by the law of supply and demand operating in the world market. Russian grain brought 1 ruble 20 kopeks a pood. But due to the clumsiness of the soviet economic machine, the cost of delivery left the peasant producer between 25 and 35 kopeks a pood, just a trifle over the cost of production.

In this crisis, the gravest of all in its tempestuous career, the soviet republic has no Lenin to battle with the problem and smooth the way. It has only Zinoviev, Kamenev and Stalin. They are the big three of Russia today. They have divided Lenin's unlimited authority.

Can they find a way out?

No one knows the answer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Finding means to assure an adequate food supply for the United States in 2024, when, it is estimated, the country will have three or four times as many mouths to feed as now, is the assignment given to the Thompson Institute for Plant Research by its founder, William Boyce Thompson, financier and philanthropist. The institute has just begun its work.

Officers of the Institute say that at the rate of increase in the last four years, indicates that the population of continental United States will be 125,000,000 in 1930; 167,000,000 in 1950, and 195,000,000 in 1960.

In order to be self-supporting in 1960, it is pointed out, the maximum food production of the United States thus far virtually will have to be doubled and the demand presumably will continue to increase with the further increase of population.

In another century, it is estimated, this country must "feed, clothe and shelter 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 people instead of 100,000,000 as now."

Will Be Permanent Foundation. Through personal association with Dr. Robert Kennedy Duncan, organizer and first director of the Rockefeller Institute of Industrial Research, Mr. Thompson became enthusiastic over what scientific research can do in solving practical problems.

As a result he founded and endowed this laboratory for scientific research into plant life. It is not connected with any college or other institution. It is its only financial backer. It will have an endowment of about $5,000,000. Steps are under way to make it a foundation on the lines of the Rockefeller or Carnegie Foundations, so that its work may go on indefinitely.

Mr. Thompson is working for the future, explains the director of the institute, Dr. William Crocker, formerly professor of plant psychology in the University of Chicago.

"It took fifteen years for Dr. William Saunders and his sons to develop the famous Marquis wheat, and twenty years before it could be raised in any quantity; but now it has increased the wheat yield between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 a year on the average."

Purpose Purely Research.

"Some of the research we are doing today may be productive in a few years, but much of it will not have its effect for 15 years or longer."

"Mr. Thompson is looking ahead to the day when the cry of America will no longer be 'How can we dispose of our surplus?' but 'How can we feed our population?'"

The prime purpose of the Institute is pure, fundamental research. The matter of getting the information gained into the hands of farmers, will be left largely to state agricultural colleges, farm bureaus, and similar institutions, which are in touch with the producers, but are handicapped in fundamental research by the necessity of devoting themselves largely to teaching, inspection, and immediate problems.

It Doesn't Pay

"Why don't you advertise?" Town storekeeper: "No, Steve, I did once and it nearly ruined me."

"How was that?"

"Why people come in and bought often near all the stuff I had."

Arkansas farmer: "They certainly believe in giving the athletes plenty of nourishment. My son just wrote that the school is buying Jerseys for them."

Archangle Faces Hard Winter

(By the Associated Press)

ARCHANGEL, Russia, Oct. 11.—Great droves of famished bears, emerging from the snowbound woods in search of food, have killed thousands of sheep and cattle near Archangel. Natives have organized vigilance squads to shoot the marauding animals, which never before have been known to be so numerous at this time of year.

TIGER GRIDSTERS OUT FOR BATTLE

Number of Promising Recruits Working Veterans for Places on Team

Last year the squad elected for their leader their most important man. That is Capps, all-state tackler for two years. He is not only a first class player, but a general with it. He can put more fight in a line than was ever there before; and with Capps leading them into the play, the backfield can gain ground, as they have never been able to gain before. Capps is a big man, and as fast on his feet as any man on the squad; and best of all he is loved, and has the confidence of the entire squad.

Paul Kratz, second all State man, is back with his same old fighting spirit that carried him through several contests of last season. Kratz weighs 176 lbs. and throws about twice that much weight whenever an opposing end or tackle tries to cross the Dared Line. Kratz can snap passes in very difficult angles.

John Henry Troeger, a 200 lb. tackle is back to stay this year. Troeger was missed probably more than any other man last year in the Durant game.

Shelby, another Giant of 200 lbs. is here to defend his rights, at left guard; he believes in getting them behind the line.

Craig played guard last year, but has been shifted to center this year. Craig weighs better than 200 lbs., and can use it all in center. Craig is probably the most accurate passer the Tigers have ever had.

Henderson, the shifty guard, with 185 lbs. of pressure, is especially good in running interference and hitting the dirt.

We have with us again the most important man of last year's backfield, Jack Kelly. He played more minutes, gained more ground, than any other man on the Tiger squad, beside he does all the punting and part of the passing.

Johnson from Francis is here again. Johnson was figured to be one of the best backs in the state last year, but an injury early in the season kept him out the rest of the season.

Fleming, another man that was on the casualty list last year with a broken jaw, is here to run the team like a master at quarter. He was figured to carry them through a heavy schedule last year, but an accident before the Edmond game kept him out the rest of the season.

Kerr, a letter man at the tackle, is with us again this year, and expects to make paps pep, and be a regular again this year.

Josh Lee, a letter man two years ago, is back to defend his rights at end.

Haupt who played regular end in 1918, is also back to bid for his position.

Members another end of former years, is back in school, and shows plenty of stuff to keep everyone guessing just who is going to play on the wing this year.

Clark from Mill Creek looks like good material. He won 100 yard and 220 yard races in the district track meet last year, and his ability to snap passes will make him a valuable man.

One of the best looking prospects for end, is Nettles from Sapulpa. He is mighty on defense and his all the old light that takes to carry a man through sixty minutes of battle, and his spirit will go a long way to carry others on to victory. Nettles knows what he is there for. King of last year's squad, is showing up as one of the best looking men on the squad. He is valuable because he can carry the bacon anytime, and go to the line when relief is needed.

McManus won the honor sweater last year as being the most valuable man to his squad, and his knowledge of the entire game will help him out in calling signals. Willingham is another man of last year's squad, and is proving to be a valuable man both in line and backfield.

Kirkpatrick is a man of last year's squad, and a veteran of many battles. He is valuable for broken field running, and is an important man in building a passing machine.

Thompson is another man of last year's squad. He probably finished as strong as any other man, and is beginning this year where he left last year. He will make Milam a valuable man at center.

McKinney from Sapulpa is showing up as one of the best of the new men. He can play either line or backfield. He likes to hit 'em, is a good passer and punter, and has an educated "toe". Best of all he can stand lots of work.

Good, a halfback from Prague, is shifty, a hard tackler, and will make good at end or half.

Shepard from Wetumka looks as if he could make anybody's football team. His ability to sway passes, and carry the pig skin where going is the hardest, will keep the coaches watching him closely.

Oliver from Seminole is a good player. He will make somebody work to beat him out of a place. He looks best at quarter. He can get away quicker than any other back.

Asbury from Denison is the heaviest man in the back field. He can hit the line hard. Milam will probably use him on all close plays, and to help Kelly and McKinney do the passing and punting.

Walker, a big 290 lb. man from Konawa, looks good in the line and before the season is over will make someone hustle to keep him off.

Callis looks about the best of the new line material. He has the weight, but best of all is his nerve, and he takes coaching well, and does his best to do what he is told to do.

Mitchell is another 200 lb. boy who is showing up well at tackle. He has been out of the game for sometime. As soon as he gets into condition, he will have the coaches watching him closely.

Tunstall from Coalgate is another live man, attracting attention. He looks good at center or either side of center.

We have two Floyd boys coming out for the squad. One was half on Ada High's famous team last year. He is a good all round man. His brother has not played for three years, but looks good at half or end.

Tomlin, a big boy from Purcell, looks good on hitting the line, and he punts high and far, and is a fair passer. Two more weeks of conditioning will make him look much better.

East Central has an abundance of good looking prospects, and if the squad lives up to expectations it will be the Tigers' best year. The Tigers will probably play a practice game with some team here October 3rd. Then the next three games will be away from home. The opening day at home is Homecoming game with Tahlequah, and we are expecting all the old students and friends of East Central to see the game. Special efforts will be made to have things pleasant for those returning.

New golf ball frowned—
Seaports out for fun—
Continent guests lead
Guard royalty's safety—
Marriage brokers busy—

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Conservative old St. Andrews, whence the game of golf spread around the world, does not approve of the new ball which it is proposed to standardize in the United States.

There is no quarrel with the American attitude that the balls now in use are a little too lively and carry too far when hit by powerful drivers; on that the British players who compose the golf balls sub-committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf club agree with their brethren across the Atlantic, but it is their opinion that the bluer and lighter ball proposed in America is a small change from those now in use that it doesn't really make much difference. The committee intends however to go ahead with its own tests designed to bring about a new standard in golf balls.

Meanwhile should the change take place British golfers visiting America will have to play with the American standard ball and when Americans invade England in quest of titles and trophies of the game they must use the smaller, heavier and longer to carry British ball.

Three fisher lasses from Lissie mouth had the time of their lives last week when, after visiting the British empire exhibition at Wembley, they took tea with Premier MacDonald and his daughters at the famous official residence of the prime minister, No. 10 Downing street.

When the girls arrived at No. 10, Miss Isabel MacDonald heard of their presence and invited them to tea, which was just being served to the premier and his daughters. "That was the greatest honor fish girls have ever had" said one of them afterward, "and we shall never forget it as long as we live."

Tourists who while away the coming winter months on Mediterranean cruises will find almost every seaport putting on Parisian airs, with Casinos, dance halls, restaurants, cabarets and saxonophone symphonies.

The Mediterranean winter cruises which have been elaborated since the war were so popular last year that there were not sufficient ships sailing from England and America to satisfy the demand. In consequence the stopping places, particularly the ports in northern Africa, experienced prosperity hitherto unknown to them. In fact they sold out their stocks of native trinkets, rugs and souvenirs.

This year they are providing against running short by importing from England and continental cities vast amounts of goods which they will sell from their bazaars to unsuspecting tourists in search of articles of native manufacture.

Far more lucrative than the trinket trade in these ports is the operation of gambling houses. These sprang up in mushroom fashion last year, but now many have been turned into richly decorated and furnished casinos. In some cases these have been built right on the rocks where the steamers berth, while others line the streets most frequented by tourists.

The British steamship companies are doubling their number and capacity of the Mediterranean cruises this year. Such voyages, they say, are proving more popular with the English than visits to the continental winter resorts.

Considerable controversy is proceeding in magisterial circles regarding the penalties inflicted in many courts on intoxicated motor car drivers. It has recently seen sentences were quashed or reduced to a nominal fine. This created a strong feeling among the magistrates, who complained that persons knowing nothing about the law should not be in a position to revise decisions by professional judges.

It was found however that these delinquents invariably appealed to the quarter sessions presided over by the sheriffs and that in many the practice of a stipendiary magistrate to pass sentences of two, four and six months imprisonment when it was proved that the driver of an automobile was under the influence of drink when an accident occurred involving injury to a pedestrian or the occupant of another vehicle.

So strong has this feeling become that the question of the punishment of those found guilty of being intoxicated while in charge of automobiles will be put up to the home secretary in the near future, with a view of having a bill framed for presentation to the parliament.

The hotel authorities declare for the first time in many years, visitors to London from the continent have outnumbered Americans arriving here. Many of these continental guests are business men who bring their managers and secretaries with them and spend an hour or two daily on the telephone conversing with their business headquarters back home.

These visits are believed to be due very largely to the laying of plans for trade expansion now that the post-war problems are being ameliorated but they are also partly due to the British empire exhibition at Wembley.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The French government and the prefecture of police are anxious about the safety of royal personages and exiled princes who are visiting or temporarily residing in Paris. There are now between 25 and 30 such persons of higher or lesser degree in the capital, among them former King Manuel of Portugal; the Shah of Persia; the Aga Khan, spiritual head of the Mohammedans in India, East Africa and Central Asia, and the Maharajah of Capurthala. An attack the other evening on one of the Spanish bournons who went unattended to a low quarter of Paris, has caused a deal of talk.

"Paris is dangerous only to those who make it so," said Leon Leoni, former chief inspector of the Paris criminal police, who some times is called the "pinkerton of Europe."

"Most princes who come to Paris," Leoni continued, "enjoy all the pleasures of the city without exposing themselves to the least inconvenience. Only now and then some adventurous young man thinks he would like to do the more doubtful side of Paris alone. Then he evades the care of those assigned by the prefecture to look after him and, either quite by himself or with a friend, undertakes to explore the after-midnight cabarets and questionable cafes where he is exposed to misadventure."

General Plutarco Elias Calles, president-elect of Mexico, was greatly pleased on arriving in Paris to find so many of his countrymen here to greet him. But he appeared to be unable to conceal his surprise at the modesty of the representation of the French government at the station.

The president of France was represented by a colonel of brilliant record, but of simple bearing. After the reception, General Calles asked one of the Mexican party that came to meet him: "Are there no more marshals in France?"

It was then explained to the Mexican president-elect that receptions to distinguished foreigners are regulated to a nicety by the "protocol" which is a sort of code of etiquette that guides the authorities in organizing receptions. Under the "protocol" General Calles was entitled only to such courtesies as the officials accord distinguished statesmen traveling incognito. He was not considered in the same category as the actual head of a state.

General Calles also was informed that colonels in France are of more consequence than in Mexico. The president-elect appeared surprised that an officer could serve in the French army for so many years before getting a colonel's rank.

The revival of the short, narrow skirt is strongly condemned by Andre Antoine, former director of the Odeon theatre and one of the leading authorities on the theatre in France. Speaking from the standpoint of the stage, M. Antoine had just been congratulating himself on the tendency of women to allow their hair to resume its normal length and with the prospect of being no longer obliged to see great heroines with bobbed heads and shaven necks, when the short skirt fashion came back. Many actresses, of unquestionable merit, according to M. Antoine recently have appeared to lose much of their ability because of the fact that they wore exaggerated costumes on the stage.

Many American men and women were engaged in welfare work in France during and after the war still are waiting for the medals awarded them by the French government for services rendered the French people and the French soldiers.

The reason for the delay in presenting the medals is not forgetfulness on the part of the government, but is due to the sluggishness of the service at the mint, where in addition to coining money, medals are struck.

The mint is always years behind in its work. It has not yet produced the medal commemorating the election of M. Millerand as president of the republic.

Such medals always are struck and given to the senators and members of the chamber of deputies who participate in presidential elections. The Millerand medals are promised during the coming session of parliament. No appropriation has been made as yet for a medal to commemorate the election of President Doumergue, parliament, not having provided for the unforeseen eventuality of three presidents being elected inside of five years.

Whether cod-fish balls or salmon should head the menu at the banquet on the occasion of President Doumergue's first official visit to Nimes as president of the republic nearly disrupted the council of his native town. M. Doumergue, who was born near Nimes and spent his early life in the town as a lawyer, and later became deputy for the Department of Gard and then its senator, will make his first official trip to Nimes tomorrow.

It is desired to give him a welcome fitting his high office and worthy of the town, which is renowned for its good living. One of the local specialists is cod-fish balls, made with cream, oil, and garlic. The official program, however, called for salmon. A compromise finally was reached by putting both cod fish balls and salmon on the menu.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Perhaps the most picturesque figure at the peace congress which has been in session here for several days was Andreas Schneider of Eisenach, calling himself an "apostle of nature," who attended the meetings bare-footed and bare-legged, clad in linen knee pants and blue collarless shirt. His flowing gray beard and long hair added to the unusualness of his appearance.

Schneider refuses to eat meat or countenance the killing of animals of any kind. He insists that if the human race stops killing dumb animals it will lead to its ceasing to slaughter rational human beings.

Berlin alone has one thousand marriage brokers. They are divided into three classes—first class brokers, who deal only with clients of social standing; brokers of the second class who handle the love affairs of the bourgeoisie, the third class brokers who deal only with the workers.

One of the leading brokers, a woman with an upper class following, boasts having made 36 matches in three years, or one for every month. She says the photograph of no client has remained in her album for more than a year. Many of the marriages she arranged really turned out to be love affairs.

This broker admitted that most of her clients were women with dowries and whose beauty did not equal their fortunes. She said the most annoying feature of her work was the disposition, both by men and women, to understand ages. Eventually a properly certified birth certificate must be produced, and the truth often led to the breaking off of potential matches.

Sewing Is No Longer a Complicated Art!

Most all women sew today. They do not stop at sewing their gingham and the less expensive clothes. They are not afraid to attempt the most difficult gowns.

The instructions with the patterns are so clear (and the styles are very plain) that women no longer say, "I could never make that dress! I'd never get it finished, why, I wouldn't know how!" With every Butterick pattern is a complete sewing lesson so that the woman with only ordinary skill with the needle need not feel she cannot make the smartest gowns of the season.

If you've never sewed, try it! And if you have, you'll want to sew more than ever when you see our new line of La Porte dress fabrics for Fall and Winter, 1924.

Don't wait too long before seeing our dress goods! The kind you want may be gone!

NOT RUBICON-BUT SOUTH CANADIAN CROSSED

CITY LEADERS REJOICE WITH DEDICATION OF BRIDGE OVER CANADIAN; FEAST WELL TAKEN

Marking a new era in the commercial life of this section of the state, the formal opening of the McKeeown bridge, recently completed, spanning the South Canadian river, was celebrated Friday.

The business men of Ada, aided by a small contribution from Konawa, had provided three thousand pounds of barbecue, composed of well fed beef and a few goats. There was enough to feed the 2500 hundred who were present and a generous supply left for many of those to take home.

The celebration was a get-together affair, and a note of harmony and mutual helpfulness was evident. All of the speakers stressed the importance of the bridge, linking together communities hitherto separated by the almost impassable river and opening up new social and commercial relations. Greater progress for both sides for agricultural districts and for towns and cities was predicted.

There was not a note of difference or divided sentiment. The thousands who attended made new friends, swapped experiences and applauded the sentiments of the speakers.

One of the main features of the day was the playing of the two Ada bands, the High School band, under the direction of Mr. Cudi, and the College band, under the direction of Capt. Montin. The Holdenville band, on account of school work and a football game in Holdenville, was unable to appear.

The band played often, and received the closest of attention and much applause. Their uniforms added to the occasion.

Estimates of many present were that more people south of the river attended than did those north, though this was difficult to determine. Other estimates were that the attendance from the two sides of the river was about the same.

Had it not been for the busy time both on the farm and in the towns, many believed that ten thousand people would have attended the opening. As it was, the ends sought were fully attained, all who were about the matter agreed, and that was to let the world know that the bridge now spans the river and that the most direct route north and south through this section of the state is through Ada and Konawa.

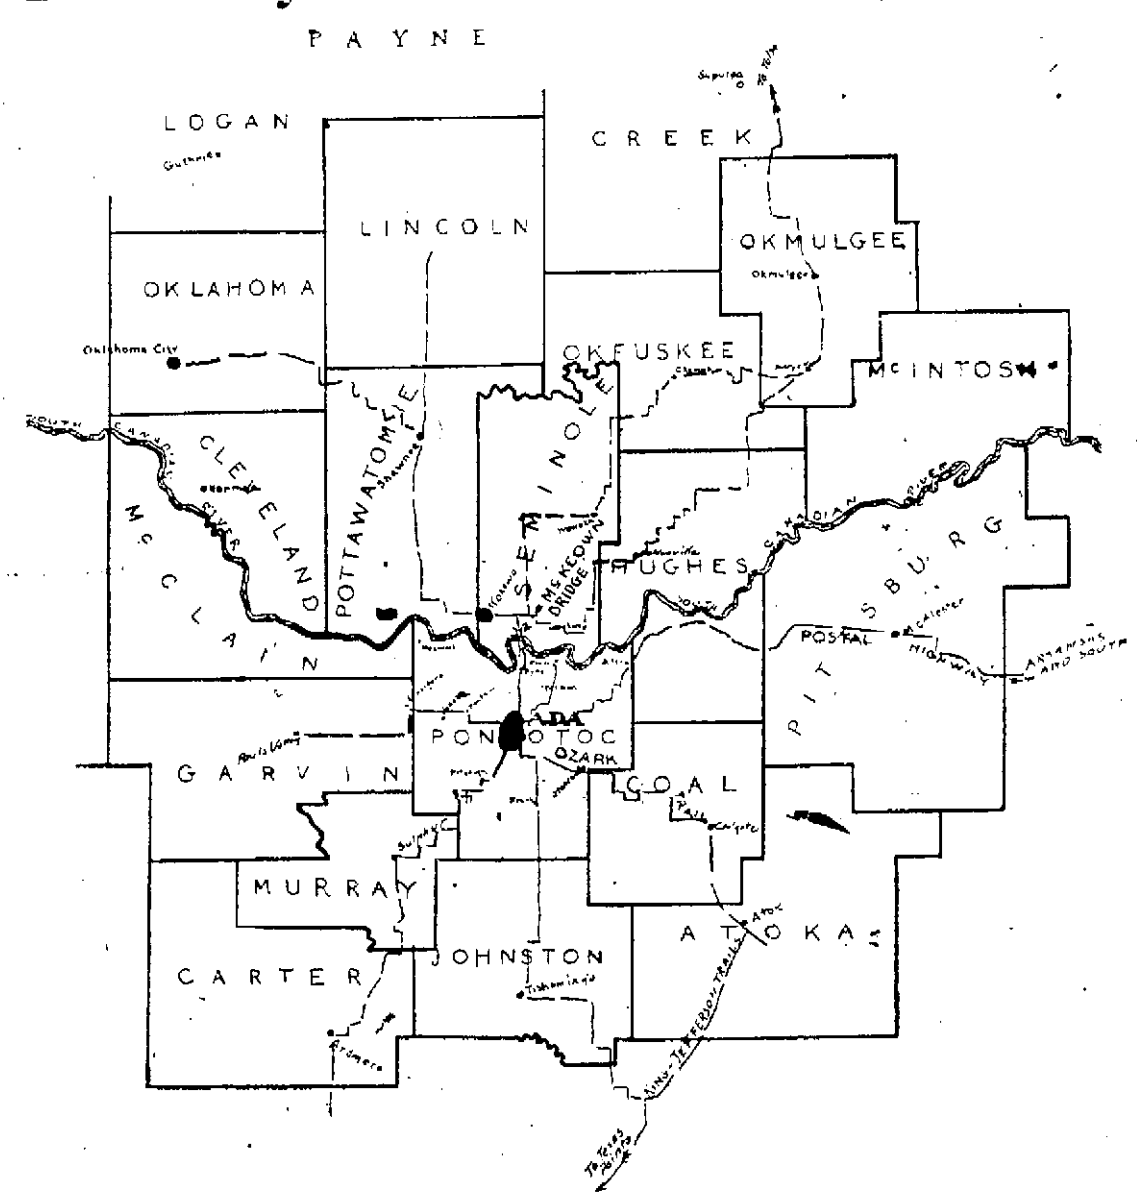

The speaking started about 11 o'clock. Rev. R. T. Blackburn, pastor of the First Methodist church of Ada, acting as master of ceremonies. In his case of manner, pleasant way of presenting matters and humorous sayings, he led the proceedings step by step through the day.

The address of welcome on behalf of the city of Ada was delivered by Roy L. Givens, president of the Ada Chamber of Commerce. He was followed by M. P. Mathis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Konawa, who welcomed the crowds on behalf of Konawa. Both of these speakers stressed the importance of the bridge, linking the two cities and these with others, in a closer commercial union.

These were followed by Dr. A. Linchard, who spoke of the importance of better means of transportation. Speaking as the president of the teachers college, which serves this district and to which the bridge is expected to prove of advantage, Dr. Linchard stressed the importance of good roads and better means of transportation in this district in particular.

At slightly after noon, Dr. Blackburn announced that the barbecue was ready to serve. Great tables had been constructed behind which the servers, Ada business men, were lined up ready to hand out the barbecue, buns and coffee. Back

Bill Coffman and some of the who helped him worked for two or three days for the success of the program. They went out as early as Wednesday and some of them stayed out the entire time, watching the meat by day and by night, in order that the people could have delicious eatings for the occasion. Although Bill said he could not recall just at that time all who helped him, here are some of them: Henry Stucky, Jack Kitchell, Jim Couch, Paul Alderson, Alton Stanfield, Monroe Corton, Byron Sledge, Joe Cole and Doc Sandbach. There were probably others. It is so both Bill and the writer apologize for omitting the names.

Among the interested men at the celebration were Pontotoc County's three commissioners. These men wanted a free bridge across the river, but saw no way of getting one soon. So they lent their efforts to getting the toll bridge across. Clay Stephens has already put much work on the road, and has it in better shape than most people thought he could get it in the length of time. The entire road is in his district. He expects to get it in even better condition within a short time. There is not a man in the county better pleased to see an outlet to the north than Messrs. Stephens, Lesman and Pace.

W. F. Kerr, one of Oklahoma's most talented newspaper men, was down for the celebration. "Billie" as he is generally known to his friends, has held down almost every desk on the Oklahoma, has been with the Associated Press and had the nerve one time to tackle the job of financing and operating a country weekly. He is now a free lance writer and correspondent for several trade papers. He expects to give the bridge considerable publicity and this entire section of the state. Billie is a good friend of George Roy's.

J. P. Bailey, who lives near the Tyrone schoolhouse, for a long time has dreamed of a great ocean-to-gulf highway by his country home. And now his ambition is about to be realized. The completion of the bridge puts him on the highway. There was not a happier person at the bridge Friday than Mr. Bailey.

R. W. Simpson had a few extra smiles on Friday also. Mr. Simpson has talked good roads so long that everyone knows he is an enthusiast. But he not only talks, he does. When eventually hard surfaced roads span this county from border to border, there should be a monument placed by the side of one in a very conspicuous place, carrying the name of Pontotoc's first disciple of good roads, R. W. Simpson.

Otto Stichtland, democratic nominee for representative in the next legislature, was shaking hands with friends and rejoicing at another of man's triumphs over nature. Otto is for good roads and better roads and more bridges. He will be found fighting for better things for this county when he gets to the legislature. If there comes a time when he can help make this a free bridge, he will be found ready and willing to help.

Governor Trapp was sorely missed, but the speakers who appeared on the program were entirely satisfactory to the crowd. They entertained and informed. Rev. Blackburn established such a reputation as a master of ceremonies, that he is likely to be called upon often in the future.

George Roy paid a glowing tribute to Col. W. E. Harvey, as a booster for the bridge. He also spoke highly of the work the bankers of Ada did as well as other boosters.

The best barbecue ever cooked! That is the way some spoke of the meat served at the noon hour.

Orel Dusby was smiling around over the hills. You know Orel used to live at Konawa, and in fact was mayor of the city. As we recall now, he was the youngest mayor in the world at the time he headed the city government there. Anyway he simply is pleased when anything happens to draw the towns closer together. He loves the people who bestowed upon him his first political honor.

Senator Tom Anglin could not be present, but Holdenville sent an able speaker in Bro. Anglin. Although he is young, he has the qualities of leadership. Holdenville sent a swarm of boosters, and they wore their badges too.

Shawnee had a delegation of boosters on the job. So did some of the other towns north of the river.

Miss Elizabeth Cain, who christened the bridge, was selected by the entire student body of the East Central State Teachers College. This within itself was a tribute to her. To say she acquitted herself gloriously does not quite make it strong enough.

NEED FOR ROADS SEEN WITH OPENING OF NEW BRIDGE NOW LINKING TRADE TERRITORIES

With the official dedication of the McKeeown bridge Friday, the opening of an abundant trade territory for Ada and a closer feeling of kinship to the cities to the north, the distant rumbling of a boom, any for better roads in Pontotoc county could be heard above the favorable sentiment cast through the dedication of the new bridge.

Between gulps of barbecue, amidst applause for speakers and in line with practically every conversation could be heard the crying need for better road facilities to meet the heavy stream of traffic bound to result from the new artery of travel opened through the completion of the bridge.

Simultaneous with the launching of plans for the bridge across the South Canadian, talk for good roads for the county was started and from all indications it is reaching a peak that will demand action in some respect.

During the dry weather the road to the bridge will be sufficiently durable to handle the traffic barring the dust to be breathed from the sandy roads but in bad weather heavy traffic is certain to impair road conditions and make travel inconvenient.

The prospect of a road from Ada to the bridge is not the only project in the minds of road enthusiasts of Ada but on the other hand boosters are anxious to link Ada with the hard surfaced highways to the south that lead into Arkansas and Texas so that the flow of traffic through Ada to Oklahoma City and points north may be increased.

Business Men Pleased

Business men and public spirited leaders of Ada are all of the opinion that the opening of the new bridge is a benefit of enormous consequence to Ada; that it will open a trade territory to the north; but many of the leaders express themselves as being favorable to better roads in Pontotoc county in order to offer something more than a bridge to the motoring public.

JOE COLE—The new bridge is one of the greatest things that has ever happened to this county. It opens up a new trade territory for Ada and as far as tourists are concerned it will make it possible for them to come through Ada. The next thing we need is a good road from the bridge south to the county line to make it complete and if Ada gets the full benefit of the bridge we must have the road.

M. C. WILSON—The bridge is a forward step the city of Ada has taken that will not only open up a new trade territory but will benefit passers-by and through and the people of Ada are to be congratulated on the completion of this bridge.

MAYOR JONES—I hardly know how to value the worth of the bridge. Besides putting Ada on the highway it opens up a road from the north to Texas and there is no way of estimating the value.

LANGFORD SHAW—The new bridge is of inestimable worth and is something Ada should have had ten years ago.

HARRY SCHEINBERG—The new bridge is a beginning of a series of road improvements to Pontotoc county and the sooner we appreciate good roads the sooner we will prosper.

L. A. ELLISON—I regard the new bridge very valuable considering the trade territory it will open up for Ada and the connection of all fields on both sides. It will lead to better roads which will result in a gradual building up of the entire community not only through added trade territory but by reason of the great number of tourists we hope and expect to bring through Ada and Pontotoc county.

W. E. HARVEY—The new bridge is equal to anything the town has ever done. I think of nothing that could help as much as the bridge.

TRAINING SCHOOL PROVES SUCCESS

School Graduates 115 After Week of Sunday School Instruction

Sunday schools and church work for the Methodist church will be adequately taken care of, by the 115 students successfully passing the examinations of the Methodist Training School which closed Friday evening.

Rev. R. T. Blackburn, pastor of the First Methodist church, and in charge of the school, considers the school one of the most important held in this district and the results far beyond his expectations.

Approximately 180 students enrolled at the beginning of the school last Sunday at 3 o'clock and out of that number 115 were present at all classes and passed the requirements demanded by the school.

The school was handicapped to some extent by the shortage of books caused by the enlarged classes. A number of students were forced to be absent for several classes, thereby preventing them from receiving credit for their work.

One feature of the school was the recognition of an hour's work at the College for students passing the requirements of the school. Approximately 100 students of the College enrolled in the classes.

A feature of the training school was the lectures of Dr. John A. Rice, D. D. L. D., whose daily lectures through Thursday furnished inspiration to the students attending the school.

Special workers in each department of the school capably handled the throng of students taking the work. Mrs. Ferguson of Oklahoma City handled the primary department; Mrs. Smith of Little Rock, the junior department; Mrs. Hoot, the intermediate senior department; E. A. Wilson of Oklahoma City, administration and organization; Wallace M. Grunfield of Durant, Church history.

The school required for elective and four specialization courses in each department.

The purpose of the training school is to train teachers for the Sunday school on the same scale of proficiency used in training teachers in the public schools. The move is primarily a Methodist venture, in which competent instructors are brought into a vicinity to instruct teachers for Sunday school work in the most effective means. Every phase of Sunday school work is given thorough attention and the Bible instruction for Sunday school work is thoroughly reviewed.

Police Department Busy

The city police department enjoyed another busy week, which was culminated with four pleas of guilty in police court Saturday morning and payment of fines in each instance. Two drunks and two peace disturbers faced the bar of justice Saturday morning.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

MASTER, THIS WOMAN was taken in adultery. Moses commanded us that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou? . . . He said unto them, he that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.—John 8:4, 5, 7.

THE COURT HOUSE BONDS.

On November 4, the citizens of Pontotoc county will be asked to vote on the question of issuing bonds to the amount of $175,000 and $25,000, the proceeds from the sale of which will be used in erecting a courthouse and jail.

As we see the matter, this is a worthy move. No one can question our need for a courthouse, and our jail has been condemned several times by the State Department of Charities and Corrections.

While we favor the bonds, we are not going to fall out with any one who opposes them. We do not believe that any one should tell another how to vote in matters of issuing bonds, except to make it clear how much the bonds will cost the individual. Voting bonds is like putting a mortgage on one's place. It is necessary to figure the cost and after knowing the cost, decide whether the investment is worth the cost.

For example, we are to put the county in debt $200,000. Learn the valuation of all the property in the county. Then take the valuation of your property and determine what part of the $200,000 and interest you will be required to pay, and then decide whether the courthouse and jail will be worth that much to you. That is all there is to voting bonds. It is a cold blooded business proposition. One should study it and decide it on its merits. What some one else is for or against should make no difference. It is you who are making the investment and a majority of you will determine the outcome.

Information will be given in The News from time to time. Meanwhile if any one desires to put his views before the public, we shall be pleased to give the matter publicity. In writing, however, we shall ask you to leave out personalities and discuss the matter at issue.

COLUMBUS DAY.

October 12 is regarded as one of the most important anniversaries in the world's history, because on that date in 1492 Columbus discovered America. It is not necessary to repeat the story of the years of struggle passed through by the bold navigator before he was permitted to sail out into the unknown ocean in search of India with its untold riches nor of his ultimate triumph in proving his theory that the world is a sphere was correct. Great as was the importance of the discovery from a geographical and political standpoint, it had even greater results in advancing civilization.

Historians have fixed this date as the beginning of the modern era, for it was this point that marked the turning away from old theories without foundation and the advance of the race in knowledge. The immediate result was a rush of other mariners to discover new lands. It having been proved that the sea was not filled with goblins ready to devour those who dared to sail into their habitations and that they would not sail over the edge of the earth into space, they became daringly bold and sailed every sea in craft that no modern sailor would think of risking at sea. The store of the world's knowledge increased and old theories were relegated to the background and there began a search for facts and the truth that has increased with passing years. In short, mankind began to chafe under the weight of its shackles and never rested until they were thrown off.

Thus Columbus unknowingly opened two new worlds to humanity. He died without knowing he had discovered a new continent and it never once occurred to him that his achievement would be the means of inaugurating a new era in the world's history.

The people of Pontotoc county are feeling better now than they have for four years. While crops are not larger this year they are enough to greatly relieve the situation and enable most farmers to get by for another year. Bankers report that many will pay out and most others will cut their notes down to a point where they can carry them easily. The cotton crop will bring at least $2,500,000 and that much outside money turned loose will help a great deal. Another good crop will put a different face on things in this county.

California is a great state but it owes a large part of its greatness to boosting. A man who spent two or three years in the state once told us that the reputation for a splendid climate was largely made in this way. No matter how raw the day might be, when two citizens met on the street they would greet each other with "Ain't this great?" Making themselves think everything was tip top was the first step towards making outsiders think the same thing. A good example for other countries to follow.

La Follette says he is out to win, but a month hence he will find that there is a vast difference between being out to win and winning out.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE.

There has been much discussion as to whether the Sermon on the Mount, as given in Matthew 5-7, was originally a connected discourse, or whether Matthew has grouped here a number of the sayings of Jesus. The account of this sermon on the occasion of the selection of The Twelve in Luke (6:12-38) is much briefer than the account given in Matthew. The arrangement is also different. Luke contrasts the lot of those who are afflicted, and hungry, and weep, and are hated now with that of those who are well-spoken of, showing that the tables will be turned. The first shall have the kingdom of God, shall be filled; shall laugh, and shall have great reward in heaven, while the latter have received their consolation, and shall hunger and weep.

In the beatitudes he is setting forth the characteristics of citizens of the kingdom rather than the conditions of citizenship. These characteristics were so different from those of the most prominent religious leaders of the day that Jesus' announcement of them must have come to the disciples as something of a shock. Especially at that time, any one who would follow Jesus as he had called The Twelve to follow him would be poor, lowly, sorrowful, despised and persecuted. We are not to forget that these things were addressed primarily to those who were called upon to leave their ordinary vocations and follow him. Nevertheless, we are to accept them as meaning that we must be willing to be and to endure all these things for his sake.

Jesus next set forth what the citizens of the kingdom were to be to the world. They were to be the salt of the earth. They were to be the saving influence in the world. The citizens of the kingdom were not only to bring individuals to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ; they were also to exercise a salutary influence upon society by their righteous living. Jesus frequently used this figure of speech. It was one which his fisher disciples would understand readily. None knew better than they how quickly fish would spoil in that climate unless salted without delay. They knew also, how quickly the salt of Palestine would deteriorate when in contact with the ground or exposed to rain and sun.

They were also to be the light of the world. Light is not only valuable for direction; it is also that which reveals things in their true colors, features and relationships. Darkness is absence of color, in which the differences between things are not distinguishable. Citizens of the kingdom were to show things up in their true colors and in their proper relationship. They were therefore to let the light shine. A hooded light was of no value. They were to let their light shine like that of a lamp on a lamp-stand instead of under a bushel, that men might see their good works and glorify God. They were to be openly and frankly Christians—as "a city set on a hill."

He told them that he did not come to destroy the law and the prophets, but to fulfill. This is not to be interpreted as meaning that everything which is to be found recorded in the books of the law and of the prophets is to be fulfilled to the letter, but that the things which began to be manifested in them should be completed in him. We belittle the Bible and blind ourselves to the truth when we insist that Jesus must fulfill to the letter everything recorded in the law and prophets. Fulfillment is here to be understood as bringing a fullness instead of faithfully following copy. "It completes what was imperfect in the earlier religion by realizing its essential principles and developing them to perfection."

That this is true is shown by the way in which Jesus contrasts the law of the kingdom with the letter of the old law. Murder is not merely killing a man; it is in the malicious attitude and in the contempt which we may feel for them. Reconciliation is better than the most solemn act of formal worship. Adultery is also in the lustful desire. The old law permitted divorce, but Jesus permitted it only for infidelity. The old law of exact equivalent for injury, which in practice was the law of retaliation, was abrogated, and the law of non-retaliation was stated in the strongest terms. What Jesus says of hating enemies referred more to an implication than to any specific teaching of the law.

Righteousness is to be sincere and without ostentation. "Take care not to do your good deeds in public for people to see, for if you do, you will get no reward from your Father in Heaven." What is said of prayer does not forbid public prayer, but it does require that there shall be nothing in it for the mere purpose of creating a good impression, and does indicate that our most genuine prayers are when we are alone with the Father. In this connection, Matthew gives us what we are accustomed to call the Lord's Prayer, the fundamental law of prayer, showing us the things for which we may pray with assurance of being heard, and the true order in which they should stand. These things include every legitimate need.

Fasting is not to be for purposes of show. It should be in such manner that nothing should indicate that we are fasting. Warning is also given against the snare of wealth. Instead of making the accumulation of wealth the big thing of life we should have the faith in our Heavenly Father which would enable us to put the doing of his will first, leaving the matter of a sufficient supply to him. This is not improvidence, but faith. If God feeds the birds of the air and clothes the grass of the field, he will provide for those who make the doing of his will the purpose of their lives. In conclusion, Jesus makes the hearing and doing of his teachings the test of righteousness.—Presbyterian Advance.

LaFollette says the old parties will soon cease to exist. He should remember that its opponents have been writing the obituary of the Democratic party for a century but that it still exists. Following every announcement of its demise and burial it has come to life and proves itself a very active sort of corpse.

Now that the world series is settled the candidates will have a chance to be heard again. No one can expect the country to listen to politics when baseball holds the center of the stage.

find favor for fall and winter dresses

Again the piece-goods department abounds with interest. Beautiful new silks and gorgeous new woolen materials arrive to present to the shopper an unusual assortment of fabrics from which to make smart frocks for the new seasons. A kind of friendly rivalry seems to be presented between the "silks" and woolens. Each pattern seems to be trying to out-do its neighbor bolt in aptly presenting the prevailing mode.

McKEOWN BRIDGE

On South Canadian Now Open For Traffic

Key Thanks Citizens

I would feel ungrateful were I to let this opportunity pass of thanking the people of Ada, Konawa and those living on both sides of the river for the assistance, encouragement and patience shown us during the construction of the Ada-Konawa Bridge which was dedicated Friday to Hon. Tom D. McKeown.

There are no better people in the world than those among whom we have labored. Nature seems to have been unkind to us in that more water came down the river while we were working on the job than during the entire preceding three years. But the task is done, thanks to the good people, and we have removed another barrier between bodies of Oklahoma's best people.

We feel that the bridge will fill a long felt want. It will permit the interchange of ideas and trade, and will help develop the great oil pools we all feel lie under the surface on both sides of the stream. Agriculture and trading will be stimulated.

We hope that the bridge will be used frequently. The prices have been put as low as consistent with good business and special concessions will be made to those living near and using the bridge frequently.

Again thanking the good people for their assistance, I am

NOVEL THREE-WHEELED MACHINE OF 1900

This is the latest addition to the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, the Knox three-wheeler of 1900. It is one of the earliest commercial motor vehicles and is of a style known as a "trap." The gas engine is a one-cylinder, air-cooled. The power application is controlled by the lever at the driver's left. In 1900 this machine was driven in a parade at the Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York city and was awarded $25 for the oldest machine to complete the line of march under its own power. Paul E. Garber of the Smithsonian staff is shown in the machine.

WEBSTER IN CHARGE OF SERVICE COMPANY

The Oklahoma Electrical Supply company has taken over the Gay Electric company at 123 West Main street and Robert H. Webster is in charge as general manager.

The company is said to be thoroughly qualified and equipped to handle any job in the electrical line, and its coming to the city is considered another evidence of the growth and future possibilities of Ada.

Mr. Webster, until recently, was manager of the service department for the Oklahoma Light and Power company, and made a success of that line. When the company decided to discontinue this line of work, he assisted in buying out Fred G. Gay and took charge of the new and enlarged store.

Mr. Webster is pleased with the outlook for bigger and better business in Ada. He feels that he is in the best small city in the state and expects to expand his business as the city grows.

The company has operated a store Oklahoma City for several years and has a reputation for fair dealing and efficient work.

NEGLECT CAUSES MANY ACCIDENTS

Car Is Equipped With Set of Brakes and Ill Treatment Destroys Them.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

"If only you ignorant motorists could understand motor talk," grunted a tiny voice, "what harrowing tales of torture you would hear."

"But some of us do," I gasped, peering down to locate the hidden voice which seemed to come from inside the brake band of the car by which I was standing. "I've studied it conscientiously for ten years."

"Then for the love of depreciation, listen—and carry my message to the world. I'm all worn out and ready to fall apart."

Brake Worn Out.

I can't repeat that painful tale. It's moral is listed in the newspapers every day under the head of "Accidents." It was only too true that the poor brake was worn out just as he said, for the next day I came across it and the rest of the car, piled against a tree at the foot of a hill. The driver escaped, as is usual with a fool. He intends to buy another car—with good brakes this time. He told me so himself. Do you know him? His name is Legion.

Now! What do you know about the brakes on your car? Is their action so positive that they will stop the car almost instantly? Will they hold in an emergency? You say: "Yes, of course, they did it just the other day." But would you be willing to bet that they would do it again?

Are you one of those who trust in luck and the devil to take care of you, and eventually, "just" into a telegraph pole? If you are one of these kind of drivers, you better put this copy of my article carefully away to read again later. You will appreciate the story much more then—provided St. Peter hasn't given you a harp in the meanwhile.

Ill Treatment Destroys.

Every car is equipped with a good set of brakes and neglect and ill treatment are the only things that destroy them. That word "neglect" should be erased from every motorist's dictionary for it is the cause of 100 per cent of all motor accidents.

Brakes must be given the most critical attention, and that, frequently. Test them! Watch out that the linings are not wearing too fast. Make this inspection two or three times a week. You, the driver, is the one who pays the penalty if anything goes wrong on the road.

Stuck in Deep Mud

When the car is stuck in deep mud and the wheels cannot get any purchase try wrapping the tire chains badly around the tire and rim of the wheel, so that they make a big bunch and then fasten them with a strap or some wire. Turn on low gear, slowly and carefully and generally the wheels will get grip enough to pull the car out.

Do Not Employ Heat to Straighten Steel

If through some mishap some of the steel parts of the chassis, such as the rear axle tubes or front axle, become bent, do not use heat to straighten them, because these parts are all carefully heat treated, and if heated for straightening they are likely to have the effects of their accurate heat treatment nullified. This will result in materially weakening the parts so that they are apt to be incapable of withstanding the strains put upon them.

The best way is to straighten such parts cold, but if the bends are too great this cannot be done. In extreme cases of this kind the best thing to do is to ship the affected part or parts to the factory for straightening.

ANOTHER ELECTION CALLED TO INCORPORATE CROMWELL

WEWOKA.—The second election for the city of Cromwell, to vote upon the incorporation of that place will be held on October 25th. The first election resulted in the proposition being defeated by a small vote. The total vote cast in the previous election was very small as compared to that cast in the primary election of August 4th. Those interested in seeing the town of Cromwell incorporated believe that at the coming election the proposition will receive a handsome majority.

Glenn Curtiss Says "It's Surprising!"

After a demonstration in the new Willys-Knight Sedan equipped with the Lanchester Balancer, the famous aeroplane builder said—"It is surprising. I drove the car at all speeds up to 50 miles an hour and found absolutely no engine vibration."

Vibrationless Motoring

Automobile engineers have been striving for many years to lay the ghost of vibration—but it has remained for the Willys-Knight to bring to the United States the secret of vibrationless engine-running.

The Lanchester Balancer—a great discovery by a great genius—the invention of Dr. F. W. Lanchester, F.R.S., of Great Britain, builder of one of the world's most expensive motor cars.

With this new ingenuity of engineering, Willys-Knight achieves positive engine smoothness at all speeds. A smoothness almost incredible to the thousands and thousands of automobile owners who have always thought vibration in a car to be a necessary evil.

This achievement is all the more notable for being sponsored by a car with so many other great achievements to its credit. Willys-Knight long since ended the days of valve-grinding and carbon-cleaning—and the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine is known around the world as the engine that improves with use.

Leading engineering authorities, car owners, the public generally, are impressed by Willys-Knight's vibrationless performance. A ride is a new thrill—a new experience—a new conception of motoring pleasure. Take a ride today!

POLICE INVESTIGATING DEATH OF GIRL AT ST. LOUIS.

(By the Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—Police of University City, a fashionable suburb today were investigating the death of Irene Hammond, whose body was found in the apartment of Dr. E. J. Neiville in one of the most fashionable residential districts of the west end. The body was found by a watchman who police reported had been notified from Chicago by Dr. Neiville that several long distance telephone calls sent to Chicago from the apartment indicated were police said, that the woman killed herself.

He will be discharged from the hospital tomorrow.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

HINTS FOR GOOD-DRIVING.

Obeys the signal of any person leading, riding or driving one or more horses or other animals.
In overtaking animals on a highway proceed with caution.
When coming out of a garage drive with more than ordinary care. Usually in coming out of a garage you have to cross a sidewalk and that is where people walk. That's worth remembering.
When you crank your car in the street make sure that your brakes are set. Keep your brakes and steering gear in order.
Don't neglect the emergency or handbrake. Learn to use it.
If there is danger from skidding use chains.

WHERE AND HOW TO TURN

Never turn a corner at a high rate of speed.
Never turn around abruptly.
Never unexpectedly change your course.
To do any of these things while driving a motor car may result in an accident.

Learn to drive in a straight line always. If you must change your course make clear with hand signals what you intend to do.
In turning a corner watch for both pedestrians and motorists. In turning a corner you may be running through a stream of pedestrians who have just been given the signal by the traffic officer to cross.
Pedestrians should be allowed to cross before motor travel is permitted to run through the line of walking.

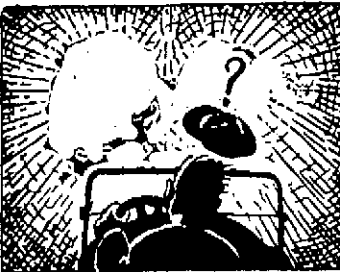

PARIS THE BUSIEST CITY

The Automobile Club of Southern California, the largest organization of its kind in the world, has just inaugurated a highway patrol service to give first aid injuries, furnish road information and help in the case of breakdown.

Southern California is the greatest motor car market in the world. Los Angeles has some of the most troublesome traffic problems of any city because of its amazing growth and because of the large number of visitors in the city every day.

Paris, not New York, probably has the biggest traffic problem in the world. According to a tally kept by the police in Paris recently it was found that between the hours of 3 and 7 p. m. more than 104,000 vehicles passed the crossroads at the Place de la Concorde.

WATCH YOUR HEADLIGHTS

There are anti-glare laws to prevent this. Make sure you are obeying the law.

The number of accidents due to glaring lights has become so frequent that most communities today have adequate laws, regulating the use of lights. It must not be forgotten that the purpose of a light is to see where you are going, not to confuse the motorist approaching you.

Test for Gasoline Should Be Tried Out

Know how to test the gasoline you purchase?

The next time you drive up to a filling station, take out a piece of white paper, and get the man to put a few drops of his product on it.

Wait two or three minutes for the gas to evaporate.

If, then, you cannot see where the "gas" was put, fill up.

If you can see a grease spot, drive on.

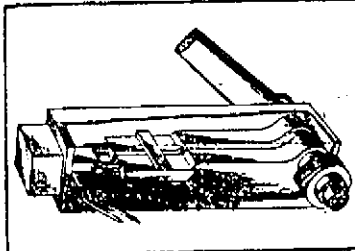

This comes from a man who makes gasoline and has known it all his life.

Try it.

Prevent Car Operation by Unauthorized Person

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing an automobile lock, the invention of E. C. Lamson of Jefferson, Ohio, says:

The invention relates to a simple means for preventing the operation of an automobile by an unauthorized person through the combination of parts with locking means in such a manner as to hold inoperative the clutch pedal control shaft or sleeve. The construction is such that either clutch or service brakes may be locked independently or at the same time, and thus prevents the car from being pushed or dragged away. The device may be used in many forms, and positioned in any convenient place on the car. It is applicable to practically any type of car manufactured.

Resetting a Magneto

In resetting the magneto the coupling often may be placed so as to cause the magneto shaft to be out of alignment. The best method is to note the condition of the coupling before being removed, which is done by slipping the thumb and forefinger around it.

The periphery should be perfectly smooth and one side should not be higher than the other. In resetting the coupling clean it well and see that the outer surfaces of the parts are in line.

Loosening Hub Caps

Hub caps won't always come off merely by wrench persuasion, even when considerable manual effort is also used. If the cap is so tight that you cannot budge it by your own efforts, bring the jack into the matter. Use a fairly long-handled wrench and place the jack under the end of the handle. A few strokes of the jack will get the best of the stubbornest hub cap.

Care of Magneto

While the magneto does not require much attention other than an occasional oiling, in accordance with the instructions of the maker, it is a good plan to remove the breaker box and distributor covers to clean these members. A small, soft brush will be of service. This should be done at intervals, especially if the magneto is exposed to dust, etc.

Farm Column

New Use for Corn

The recent practical application of the fact which has long been known that sugar can be made from corn is likely to cause new interest among the farmers of the United States in the much-argued question of tariff on sugar.

All sugar imported into the United States bears a flat tariff rate of 2.2 cents per pound for the raw product, with the exception of Cuban sugar, which gets a 20 percent less rate, or 1.76 cents per pound. This tariff is held necessary if the growers of cane sugar in the Southern States, and especially in Louisiana, and the growers of sugar beets are to compete with the sugar shipped in from Cuba and the West Indies.

There has been considerable objection to the sugar tariff, on the ground that a very large percentage of the sugar used must be imported, and that the American sugar-growing industry is not important enough to justify the 2.2 cent protective tariff which must be paid upon the bulk of consumption.

Now, however, vast quantities of cereose, or corn sugar, are being manufactured and placed upon the market. This new variety of sugar is made by converting the starch content of the corn grain into sugar by a process which has been known for many years, but only recently worked out on a commercial scale. When sugar is made from corn in this manner the parts containing oil are not used, and both sugar and oil are extracted from the same grain.

The cereose has the same good value as other sugar, and is being produced in large quantities in factories in Iowa and other corn-belt States. It is being sold in five-pound sacks at a price about four-fifths that of cane sugar, or approximately equal to the price for which tariff-free sugar could be sold in the United States.

This new use of corn opens up a new market which may be of great value to the farmer. If a demand is developed, the manufacturer of sugar from corn might easily make up for all of the surplus of corn over feeding needs, and make the United States entirely independent of foreign conditions for its sugar. It is possible, so experts say, to manufacture forty pounds of sugar from a single bushel of corn.

The discovery of new use for corn has been a development of the last few years. This sugar, of course, is merely another step further along the line developed by the manufacturer of corn syrup, now so familiar on the market. Corn oil and corn flakes are also comparatively recent in their discovery as a commercial product.—Iowa Homestead.

Troop No. 2 spent Friday night at the Lodge. Scoutmaster J. C. Treadwell says that the boys were very orderly and that they had a mighty fine time.

Troop 3 had an exceptionally good meeting with a large group of boys out. Prof. M. P. Hatchett delighted them with his interesting talk on nature lore, exhibitions of box nose snake, sea horse, octopus and moths. Prof. Hatchett is a welcome guest at any scout meeting.

Troop 10 scouts turned out very poorly Friday night. Only four scouts out. Scouts of troop 10 you have a mighty good scoutmaster now in Willard Owen. He is always there. Its up to you now to see what you will do.

At the meeting of troop 9 Friday evening Orville McCoy was elected Senior patrol leader. Johnnie Rogers, Scribe. Clyde Click, Assistant patrol leader of the pigeon patrol and Leroy Hargis patrol leader of the Eagle patrol. The preparation for the big carnival which troop 9 scouts will soon give are progressing nicely.

Troop 4 scouts took in the picture show at the McSwain theatre Friday night. Thanks Mr. McSwain.

Rooff scouts had an exceptionally good meeting and attendance Monday night. Harvey Miller and Marvin Miller, Audie DeLaise and Eddie Tingle were awarded their tenderfoot badges.

Louis Hill was elected Senior patrol leader. Victor Hughes was elected scribe. We are expecting big things of the Rooff scouts.

Francis scouts got four new members recently. They are Jim Honey-sucker, Vergil Honey-sucker, Ralph Cordell, and Fred Miller. Mighty glad to have these new scouts. Prof. Caperton is doing well with his troops.

We were mighty glad to hear several scouts tell of the many good turns which they had done recently. It is a fine sight to see a scout show his scouting spirit and his respect for his scout oath when he goes to a lady on the street and offers to do her a good turn by carrying her grip to the train. It looks just as good to see a group of scouts do a good turn for a man who may have had car trouble or who has lost something.

John W. Davis on Life Insurance

I regard the institution of life insurance as representing one of the most beneficent agencies employed on behalf of the American people at the present time. It is big business at work for the firesides of the toiling masses. It expresses most accurately the principle of individual thrift. It accumulates estates for the dependents of millions of men who live out of their pay envelopes, or on limited incomes otherwise derived.

Life insurance is the one means above all others by which men are enabled to provide estates for those they leave behind, by simply paying a low rate of interest thereon from year to year, the total annually paid varying according to the size of the estate provided. One can not get an estate for those he loves and who are dependent upon him more surely or at lower cost than through the employment of life insurance.

In my opinion life insurance is one of the greatest agencies of public good. The time will come, I hope, when every man with dependents will plan in the early years of life, when the most favorable terms can be secured, for a life insurance estate for his loved ones. Indeed, it is the only means available to the average man by which to assure the future of those he must leave when the hand of death beckons.

The life insurance agent who sells honest insurance honestly, at an honest price, and conforms and helps his company conform to the strict statutory requirements which govern both company and agent, is entitled to the respect and regard of all thinking men. He may be employed on salary or commission, but, nevertheless, his work is 95 per cent unselfish and on behalf of the families of men who might never otherwise leave any estate for their dependents or provide more than personal burial expenses out of what they leave behind.

I think enough of life insurance to be able to say that I carry enough of it to care for such estate I may leave—pay all the required taxes thereon—and independent of my other resources, care for those dependent upon me, in the event that I should be taken away. That is good sense, good business, common honesty. No man charged with responsibility for the welfare of others should leave them unprotected against the contingency of his death. The life insurance I carry I regard as the most certain and valuable part of my estate, and it is dedicated to a sacred purpose.

Valentino

Monsieur Beaucaire

Rudolph Valentino returns to the screen in a magnificent picturization of Booth Tarkington's famous romantic novel of France, "Monsieur Beaucaire"

Romantic love scenes.

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"

AT last—the long hoped-for and eagerly awaited return of Rudolph Valentino to the screen has occurred! And not only can the most romantic figure in motion picture history once again be seen at your favorite theatre, but he is coming back to us in by far the greatest picture in which he has ever appeared.

"Monsieur Beaucaire" has been produced on an amazingly elaborate scale by Sidney Olcott, director of "Little Old New York" and "The Humming Bird," from Booth Tarkington's novel, with Bebe Daniels, Lois Wilson, Doris Kenyon and Lowell Sherman heading a supporting cast of 500.

In "Monsieur Beaucaire," Valentino has the rôle of the greatest lover at the Court of King Louis XV of France, where love and scandal are the favorite pastimes.

Never has Rudolph Valentino been such a lover, such a dancer, such a swordsman, such a dashing, handsome hero as you'll see him in "Monsieur Beaucaire."

The screen's most romantic hero.

"Farewell, France!" cries Rudy after besting the King's Guard at swordsmanship.
